Japan Delays Action against French Indo-China

Vichy Fails To Reply to Tokyo Ultimatum Hours After Deadline

May Agree To Yield Large Territories in Thailand at Conference within Few Days

TOKYO, March 1. (AP)—(Saturday)—Hidde diplomatic maneuvers may delay a final decision on mediation between French Indo-China and Thailand, reliable sources indicate today, even though France apparently ignored Japan's ultimatum to yield large territories to Thailand by last midnight or suffer "forced" Japanese action.

The French embassy here still was awaiting final word from the Vichy government of the Japanese settlement plan and it was believed that Japan would postpone determination of their course until some sort of reply is received, even though the deadline expired many hours ago.

Tokyo papers said a prospective meeting with Indo-China delegates at a foreign office would be followed "in day or two" by a conference of the Japanese cabinet and high officials.

WILL CONCLUDE ARMISTICE
In any event, Japan announced yesterday that the armistice between Indo-China and Thailand would continue its expiration date March 7 at noon.

Reliable sources disclosed that in a conference Sunday, French Ambassador Charles Arsene Henry fully rejected Japan's "final mediation proposal," and that a compromise plan then was formed and transmitted to Vichy with a reply demanded by Friday midnight. This reply still is awaited, but commentators predicted it too would be rejected.

According to reports at Saigon that could not be confirmed, Japanese patrol planes hovering fifty-one miles off the coast of Indo-China were in the Gulf of Thailand and waiting for southern Indo-China.

Moreover, Japan reported to have in northern Indo-China, aside from air bases, more than double the 5,000 troops allowed under last September's accord with the French, ostensibly for protection of the war with China and the island of Saigon, southern Indo-China, is said to have been converted by the Japanese into "nucleus" bases.

In Vichy, after a lunch cabinet meeting, it was announced that the French positions in Indo-China had been decided. During the meeting, however, an official spokesman said France "is obligated to conserve its integrity."

DARDANELLES REPORTED CLOSED BY TURKISH ORDER

This is a view of the Dardanelles, strategic straits between the Black sea and the Mediterranean, which reports say Turkey has closed to all shipping. The report was received as British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and General Sir John Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff, talked with Turkish officials at Ankara about the threatening Balkan situation.

Five Deaths Mark Terrific Storms In Many States

Deep Snow Forces Schools To Close in Some Parts of Country

By The Associated Press
A driving snowstorm, spawned off the Virginia Capes, swept the northeast Atlantic seaboard yesterday, forcing schools to close, stalled highway and rail traffic, grounded planes and brought out storm warnings for ocean-going craft.

At least five deaths were attributed to the storm which in some parts was accompanied by winds of gale force.

While the snow—and temperatures around the freezing mark—extended as far south as the Georgia-Florida border and a thirty-degree reading was forecast for today in Florida's citrus and winter vegetables growing areas, Iowa basked in almost "spring-like" weather.

Winds in California

High winds battered California. The Monterey, Calif., high school closed because the wind wrecked a power line, shutting off heat and light. Sheds were unroofed and smashed and moved at Salinas.

Drifts as high as five feet piled up in Delaware, marooning Rehoboth beach. Three hundred workers sent out by the state highway department were unable to keep all roads open.

Thirty passengers were imprisoned three hours in a snow-stalled interurban trolley car between Vineland and Pileasville, N. J.

Herkimer Hurricane Puts Up Game Fight, but Loses To Texan in the Seventh

Ambers Looks Like Winner for Six Rounds, but Weakens and Referee Is Forced To Stop Bout

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. (AP)—Lew Jenkins's astute thunder was muffled for six rounds tonight, but he finally found the range and ended gallant Lou Ambers's comeback hopes in the seventh round as a roaring crowd rooted for the laughing boy in Madison Square Garden.

Jenkins weighed 134, Ambers 140½.
For six rounds, it was Ambers's fight. He laughed off every one of the famed "Sunday punches" Jenkins threw. He made the "experts" who picked him to be put to sleep in a hurry, look foolish, and he chopped away at the Texas thin man round after round.

End Comes in Seventh

Then in the seventh, he was caught by a slashing left hook that sent him staggering backward into the ropes. Back he came, trying to hold on and clear his head. But it was no go. A sweeping left half pushed half knocked him to his knees for a count of two.

Up he came, trying again. This time a barrage smashed him to the floor. Up he staggered at the count of eight, only to be met by some more of the same. He sank to his knees again, and Referee Arthur Donovan called a halt to the affair at 2:26 of the seventh round.

It was a truly unfortunate end to one of the most surprising and certain fights of the year.

Wheeler, George In Angry Debate Over British Aid

Former Denies Opponents of Measure Resort to Filibuster

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—An angry charge that the opposition to the Lease-Lend bill was resorting to a filibuster was flung into the Senate debate today by Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, and was quickly denied by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.).

The two had fallen into a furious argument as to whether President Roosevelt could arbitrarily under-value existing military equipment to keep transfers to England within a $1,300,000,000 limitation prescribed by the bill. Standing a few feet apart, both talking at once, Wheeler maintained that the president could; George that he could not.

"I don't think the senator wants to make a foolish spectacle here on the floor," George said, "he can if he wants to."
Both Talk At Once
Again both senators began talking at once, with Wheeler finally asserting that:

"I have the floor."
"Yes," George retorted, "and you've had it for almost two weeks. I'll have it for two weeks more, if I want it."
"Then it's a filibuster."

This Wheeler denied, but the two were off again, with Senator Murdock (D-Utah) presiding finally gaveling them to silence and remarking that the debate had grown "disorderly."

The struggle over the bill had reached another climax a short time before when Wheeler told the Senate that the measure covers "an insensate program to strip the United States of its defenses for the benefit of foreign nations" and then plunged it into war "at the whim of the chief executive."

Not for Defense of U. S.

"This bill is not for the defense of the United States," the Montanan shouted. "That is apparent on its face. It was not drafted by (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Ex-King Alfonso Dies in Rome of Angina Pectoris

End Comes Quietly with Family Present; Funeral Mass Monday

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
ROME, Feb. 28. (AP)—Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain died today after fifteen days of the agony of angina pectoris, and tonight his body lay in the hotel bedroom which for a decade had been his place of exile.

His weakened heart stopped at 11:50 a. m. (4:50 a. m. EST). Fifteen minutes before the end all that remains of his family had gathered around him—all save the infant Christina, who was at Turin awaiting the birth of another grandchild of the dying monarch.

Alfonso was lucid but spent and weary and could only look at them—at the estranged former Queen Victoria; at his son and designated heir to the throne of Spain, Don Juan; at his son Jaime and his daughter Beatrice.

It seemed to those about him that (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Germans Continue Attack on London

LONDON, Feb. 28. (AP)—Bombs fell in London tonight from German warplanes which had breached thick mist and high winds over the Dover Strait to renew the assault upon Britain. Other explosives were dropped in southeast England.

The raiders departed London after a brief initial raid, but returned late in the night for another stab. A London apartment house was damaged and there were a number of casualties.

The first alert here came soon after dark. Over the city there was a high ceiling of unbroken clouds. British offensive operations were halted last night by gales over the channel, but during the day the British disclosed that new four-motored bombers, called among the world's most powerful military planes, had been sent against the Nazis for the first time "a few nights ago."

The magazine Aeroplane stated that the craft, along with reinforcements in planes from the United States, would "make possible more intense attacks on selected objectives in 'the heart' of German territory."

Yugoslavia Officially Informed of Bulgaria's Plans To Join Axis within a Few Hours; Germans Moving Large Number of Troops through Rumania Toward Border; Turkey Massing Soldiers

By The Associated Press
BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA, March 1 (Saturday) — Bulgaria stated officially early this morning that she will join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis today.

Before the ink is dry on the documents at Vienna — expected scene of the ceremony — German troops already marching in Rumania will enter Bulgaria automatically as Allies and Great Britain will have to break relations with the newest Axis recruit, keenly-watching diplomatic quarters predicted.

The official word that Bulgaria finally has yielded to the Nazi program was conveyed to Yugoslav Foreign Undersecretary Smajlanic by Bulgaria's charge d'affaires, Ivan Strafeff.

Diplomatic reports from Sofia said Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philoff and Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff were flying to Vienna in a special plane this morning to sign the pact.

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and the Japanese ambassador to Berlin, Lieut. Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, already are in Vienna.

Thus, on Bulgaria's own official word, she finally was yielding formally to the Axis in a few hours.

Funds for Nazi Troops

A Bulgarian merchant who arrived here late last night from Sofia said that many millions of Bulgarian levas (the monetary unit) had been purchased recently by agents for an unknown account which was assumed to be the German quarter-master corps acquiring funds for the German troops whose arrival now was believed to be only a matter of brief hours.

From all sources the word was the same: Bulgaria's number was up.

Diplomatic dispatches from Rumania told of mass movements of German soldiers in full battle kit through the blocked-off streets of Bucharest, less than fifty miles from the Bulgarian border.

Sofia Is Cut Off

Sofia was like a besieged city, surrounded by policemen and cut off from communication even with its own provinces.

With the brief lifting last night of the ban on outside calls, there came news-tinged with forebodings — of long talks between Premier Philoff and King Boris and between Philoff and the Russian, Turkish and Italian ministers to Bulgaria.

It was reported officially that the Bulgarian cabinet met in a hasty night session following a thirty-minute special assembly of the Parliament.

Other reports here said Bulgarian air defense corps had been fully mobilized.

Another dispatch said Bulgarian army units were moving through the country, principally towards the Turkish border.

Other Sofia information said two Bulgarians employed at the Greek legation had been taken into custody in a series of wholesale arrests which included numbers of unidentified British subjects.

Britain and Turkey, in the face of fast-developing events, presented at least outwardly a united front. They stood on their announcement of a complete identity of views after having examined all eventualities — presumably including a German push through Bulgaria into Greece to the Mediterranean.

Observers pondered on whether Adolf Hitler definitely had decided to disengage his Italian allies from their ill-faring war with the Greeks in Albania.

Neutral military experts here agreed that such a move might well mean that Germany has abandoned hope of a blitzkrieg windup to the war with Britain.

They argued that apparent German willingness to engage large bodies of troops in a southeastern adventure would indicate reconciliation to a long-drawn war in the west and abandonment of the long- (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Prince Frederick Newspaper Plant And 2 Buildings Destroyed by Fire

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md., Feb. 28. (AP)—Two two-story buildings in the heart of Prince Frederick, including the plant of the Calvert Journal, were completely destroyed by fire tonight.

There is no fire department here and companies from Galesville, Upper Marlboro, North Beach and La Plata, traveling over roads made dangerous by ice and snow, arrived too late to save the buildings. They did manage, however, to keep the fire from spreading.

One of the buildings destroyed was owned by State Senator J. Wilmer Johnson of Calvert county and contained his law offices.

The other building razed was owned by Mrs. J. Briscoe Bunting and was occupied by the Calvert Journal Democratic weekly owned and edited by William W. Duke, and the law offices of Benjamin Hance, chairman of the Democratic State Central committee for Calvert county.

Duke estimated damage to the newspaper plant at about $6,000, including loss of the press, and damage to the other building at about $2,000. He said the loss was partly covered by insurance.

The fire started in the pool room above Senator Johnson's offices. Duke said, apparently from an overheated stove.

Duke, who recently bought the Calvert Journal, pointed out that Prince Frederick has no water supply for fighting fires and no fire-fighting equipment.

"For years," he said, "I have been advocating fire-fighting facilities for Prince Frederick through my editorials and otherwise. It's rather ironic that my paper should now be destroyed by fire."

Thousands Live in Cars, Trailers And Cans Near Aberdeen Posts

ABERDEEN, Md., Feb. 28. (AP)—A "frontier colonies" family keeping house in snow-banked autos, trailers and tourist-cabins is springing up here in two coming army posts.

They live — hundreds of them, air wives and children from near-as — in rough emergency quarters, going back to canteens of other days for amusements, while awaiting completion of government housing projects.

Expansion Is Rapid

Rapid expansion of the Aberdeen living grounds and Edgewood brought a parade of war-torn old barracks for draftees, new buildings and other things. They came so rapidly by that the settled section of Marine shore.

Some have slept in the messes for weeks, keeping the messes for warmth. Families lived for months in small trailers. Tourist cabins are all occupied, and one operator said he "turned down fifty requests for cabins a day."

By night, parked cars dot the highways over a twenty-mile area. Trailers are grouped in new "communities." Private homes and farms have become temporary "apartments." Elsewhere, crude settlements of shacks have mushroomed.

Workers Saving Money

Saving money against the day when jobs end, the workers have turned to card games, political and farm discussions, or amusements. Women have taken up old-fashioned quilting and sewing circles. Grocery storekeepers said they "can't keep anything in stock," so great is the buying boom.

The army soon will begin construction of 500 houses here, more at Edgewood. But they may be inadequate. By summer 6,000 to 7,000 more workers are expected to be employed at the army posts.

British Drop 30 Italian Planes

B. J. REILLEY O'SULLIVAN

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 28. (AP)—British planes shot down more than thirty Italian warplanes over the southern Albanian battle front today without a single loss to themselves, the Greek command announced tonight at the close of four months of war.

This extraordinary aerial success — the biggest victory ever reported for a single British squadron in the Greek-Italian war — was said to have paralleled local successes for Greek ground troops.

Italian tank attacks were repulsed, the Greek command reported, and one tank was destroyed.

The British had announced earlier that twenty-six Italian planes — in formation much bigger than the RAF attacking unit — were known to have been destroyed and that nine others were crippled.

CIO Claims Victory in Ending Bethlehem Strike

Both Sides Accept Government Offer; Wage Boost Not Granted

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 28. (AP)—Cheering, flag-waving CIO workers terminated a two-day strike at Bethlehem Steel's Lackawanna mill today after the company and employees approved a government-drafted agreement.

After the strikers unanimously ratified the three-point program submitted by President Roosevelt's Office of Production Management, Lackawanna Plant Manager Edward F. Entwistle said he telegraphed the OPM its proposals are "satisfactory to us."

Union members will return to jobs as soon as conditions at the plant permit.

The settlement, termed a "great victory" by Van A. Bittner, steel workers organizing committee director, provides:

1. Reinstatement of all employees recently discharged, estimated by the union at between 600 and 1,000, as soon as resumption of operations will permit;
2. A conference to seek adjustment of differences;
3. The OPM to "explore" with the labor board the possibility of holding a collective bargaining agency election.

Wage Demand Abandoned

Bittner said the union's original demand for a twenty-five per cent wage increase, later abandoned, would be considered when it "bargains" with the company. He added he hoped an election would be held within thirty days.

The strike, called at 9 p. m., Wednesday and attended by occasional violence, threatened the union said, to ensnare other Bethlehem mills, working on $1,500,000,000 worth of defense orders.

The SWOC claims 10,000 members among Lackawanna's 14,000 employees, but has declined to estimate the number who struck.

Bittner conceded the possibility of delay before all the men return to their jobs, and said "it may not be possible to get all the furnaces and other plant equipment into immediate operation and it may take several days to take all the men back."

"Victory," Bittner Says

Bittner told the strikers the "capitulation" of Bethlehem is a "great tribute" to the union men at Bethlehem, and added:

"This is the beginning of the end of tyranny, of spies and of espionage; this is the beginning of the end x x x of non-unionism in the plants of the Bethlehem Steel Company."

Entwistle, who appealed to Governor Herbert H. Lehman for "adequate police protection," to safeguard "loyal and patriotic" workers, asserted the company had always recognized collective-bargaining agencies where they had a majority representation; the Lackawanna plant pays wages as high or higher than those in other steel plants; and the company has "established an ample procedure for dealing with grievances through representatives of the company."

Berlin Forecasts Military Activity At an Early Date

Political Events Also Due Soon, Authorized Source Asserts

BERLIN, Feb. 28 (AP)—Tense expectancy that military and political events of prime importance are just around the corner deepened among authorized military and other observers in Berlin tonight.

Germania closed the books on February with a compilation of twenty-nine British ships, totaling 146,000 tons, sunk or damaged in the last two days, and attributed part of this expectancy to Adolf Hitler's declaration that submarine warfare will "begin" in March or April. Many believed he would give the word before March was many days old.

Speculation also concerned southeast Europe. It was rumored that Bulgaria will join the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact tomorrow. Whether such a political step might be the forerunner of military action was an unanswered question.

Artillery General Paul Hasse, in an article in the Boersen Zeitung, described a German army of millions drilling with fanatical zeal in a pause between blitzkriegs to master the handling of intricate war gear.

Quickness Comes First

"The course of the war so far has taught that the first essential is to be quicker than the foe," he wrote. "Quicker in grasping decisions and carrying out orders, quicker in movement by foot, horse, wheel and armored car, quicker in surprise attack and most of all quicker in taking full advantage of any break."

Reports emanating in Vichy to the effect, that the Germans have begun a methodical evacuation of all civilians from a twenty-two-mile-wide stretch of the French channel coast, possibly as part of final preparations for attack on England, were met in Berlin by a shrug of official shoulders.

"That," said a spokesman, "is a military matter, pure and simple, about which we are unable to give any information."

Authorized military observers commented that the high command's announcement of twenty-nine ships sunk or damaged in two days meant German marine and air services have inflicted a "fourth great convoy catastrophe" on Britain in a short time.

More Ships Attacked

To nine ships sunk and seven damaged in an air attack west of Ireland, which was reported yesterday, the high command today added one ship sunk and twelve others damaged of 44,500 tons total attacked in English waters.

Informed quarters warned the British navy and newspaper correspondents that "it will be a little more lively next week."

Official quarters said they were not perturbed by the lack of British verification of these extraordinary losses claimed by the Germans.

"We believe that as the nose pulls tighter British denials will be more emphatic and the admission of losses less frequent," said an authorized spokesman.

"The fact is that England is approaching its position in 1917 when Admiral Sims of the United States navy was astounded by Jellicoe's (British admiral) admission of the extent of havoc wrought by our submarines. We recall that Churchill (British prime minister) in 1919, speaking of the 1917 emergency, said England's fate hung by a thread."

To the aerial toll of 146,000 tons of shipping, the high command added 22,000 tons sunk by a returning submarine.

One plane alone was credited with destroying 240,000 tons up to Feb. 27.

In attacks on England, it was said, six airports, hangars, shelters, and an aircraft factory were bombed.

Pen-Mar Baseball League Meeting Is Set for Sunday

Officers will be elected and plans will be made for re-organization of the Pen-Mar Baseball League at a meeting Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Junior Order hall at Mt. Savage, according to an announcement made yesterday by Howard Northcraft, secretary of the league.

Northcraft said the meeting is open to all teams which held franchises last season as well as other teams who desire to become affiliated with the league.

Teams in the league last season were Loneoaning, Mt. Savage, Bard, Eckhart, Cumberland Merchants, Centerville, Barton and Wellersburg.

The league had a 28 game schedule last season with games being played on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Loneoaning won the championship in the four team round-robin series.

Gee and Bauers Please Frankie Frisch

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Feb. 28 (AP)—Praising the condition of "Long" John Gee, six foot nine inch southpaw rookie, and Russell Bauers, just an uncertain hurler with much "stuff" on the ball, Manager Frankie Frisch opined today the two "may mean a lot" to the Pittsburgh Pirates this year.

Knudsen Offers Plan To Prevent Strikes in Defense Industries Ex-King Alfonso

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—A far-reaching plan to head off strikes in defense industries and to deny the protection of the Wagner act to unions or employers considered recalcitrant was laid before Congress today by William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management.

He wrote a memorandum to Chairman Sumners (D-Tex.) of the House Judiciary committee, endorsing a provision in a bill by Rep. Smith (D-Va.) calling for federal conciliation when it appears that a defense strike is imminent.

Then he added these suggestions, in case conciliation failed:

Must Take Ballot

"Notice of intent to strike on a defense contract shall be given only after all the employees in the plant have given their consent through a secret ballot conducted on the premises, under supervision of the conciliation service of the Department of Labor with a majority of not less than sixty per cent."

"After notice of intent to strike is served on the management and the labor department, a committee of fact finding members of OPM will study the issue and give a report within ten days. Strike must be deferred until 30 days after report is submitted."

"Failure to comply will make strike unauthorized and will forfeit the manufacturer's and the union's rights before the National Labor Relations Board, until reinstated by the board."

(There were differing opinions as to what the words "failure to comply" referred; some quarters thought they meant that the strike would be declared unauthorized if the report of the fact-finding board were not complied with; others believed the strike would be outlawed if the thirty-day cooling-off period and other rules suggested in the previous paragraphs were ignored. Aides of Knudsen said he would not be available to interpret the language until tomorrow.)

Favors Strict Penalties

In the same communication, Knudsen told Sumners that he agreed with other sections of Smith's bill which provide for life imprisonment for sabotage on property or finished articles. But he said he opposed similar penalties proposed for "interfering" with property on defense contracts or handling such property "in a defective manner."

He did not comment, however, on still other sections which would make it unlawful to compel a defense worker "to join or not to join" a labor organization.

Judiciary committee members received the memorandum without comment but Sumners said that the committee would resume on Monday its hearings on the general subject of labor troubles in defense industries.

Blizzard Sweeps Part of Maryland

Storm Threatens To Isolate Some Communities in State

[By The Associated Press] A snowstorm that reached blizzard proportions on the Eastern Shore continued to sweep Maryland last (Friday) night and state police sent out a general warning to motorists that automobile driving was "extremely hazardous."

The storm threatened to isolate some communities and the weather bureau predicted conditions would become worse during the night.

Two motorists were killed during the day in crashes in the Baltimore section.

Heaviest snow was reported on the Eastern Shore and in western section of the state, where state roads crews were laboring in efforts to keep roads open.

Many automobiles were stalled and there were several wrecks caused by skidding into trees and poles.

Herkimer

tains as game a stand as this battle ring has ever seen.

The little, square-jawed Herkimer hurricane was supposed to be all through after Jenkins took his world lightweight championship away with a three-round knockout last May. He was supposed to be fresh out of his biggest asset—speed. He was meeting one of the most dangerous punchers the little men of the ring have ever seen. Yet, he walked right in there and did better than good, as the crowd—definitely an "Ambers crowd"—shook the rafters for him.

Ambers Severely Punished

During the first two rounds, however, no one thought he would make that kind of a fight of it. Jenkins rushed from his corner at the start with leaping rights and obviously trying for a quick knockout. In the second, it looked like he had it. He caught the little upstate laundryman against the ropes and nailed him with a hundred punches.

But Lou stood up under them, although wobbly.

Thanked Physicians

The final expression of his life, made with the last of his strength, was to thank with grave courtesy the three physicians who had worked over him so long.

Even in the long agony of his last days it was clear that he had thought much of the throne which he had relinquished ten years ago, before the sharply emerging republican spirit of Spain, lest blood be shed among his people.

For, it was disclosed, only a few days ago he had asked his intimates whether Juan, the son he had chosen to succeed him if the monarchy ever returns to Spain, was suffering much for his father's condition.

"I hope he is bearing it well," Alfonso had said. "For a king must be strong."

Funeral Mass Monday

The funeral mass will be celebrated Monday in the church of St. Mary of the Angels, the ex-king's church in life. The body will be taken afterward to the Spanish national church here, St. Mary Monserrato, for provisional interment. Permission will be sought eventually to lay Alfonso beside the ancient kings of Spain in the escorial.

Alfonso, who would have been fifty-five years old on May 17, died with the special blessing of Pope Pius and comforted by the last solemn sacrament of the church, extreme unction.

When this correspondent was admitted to the death chamber, the queen and Beatrice sat in a corner of the room. Juan, the heir to the throne, stood at the altar facing his dead father. Two Spanish nuns sat at the right, reading prayers. Two Franciscan friars were in prayer.

Leaders Visit Hotel

Downstairs, into the hotel lobby, came Luigi Cardinal Maglione, the papal secretary of state, with the Pope's condolences, and the Crown Prince Umberto to express the sorrow of the Italian king and queen. Then there came a succession of Italian and Spanish aristocrats—the latter already stiffly speaking of Don Juan as "his majesty." The police in full regalia stood on honor guard at the hotel entrance.

In the bedroom of the hotel, almost bare of furniture, the body was draped with the rich symbols of the Catholic faith. Alfonso wore the snow-white robes which he alone in all the world could wear—the robe of the commander of all Spain's orders of chivalry.

The four-cornered white cap which goes with the mantle—bearing a golden cross—lay at the feet.

The walls were black and heavy with velvet draperies fringed doubly in gold. At the head of the dead monarch there was a purple banner bearing the royal crown, two crossed flags of Spain, and a superimposed crucifix.

Over Alfonso's knees was a mantle of white lace and below that, over the feet, was a purple covering bearing a gold crown. At head and feet burned four tall candles.

At the end of the room there was an altar before which Alfonso's priest, Father Ulpiano Lopez, said the mass for the dead.

By the ex-king's request, expressed often, his body will be covered with the flag of the monarch of Spain—the flag which he carried into exile.

About the hotel tonight the crowd kept swelling.

Former Racing Magnate Dies in Accident

TAUNTON, Mass., Feb. 28 (AP)—Walter E. O'Hara, former horse racing magnate, was killed today in an automobile accident.

Lieutenant Louis Galligan of the Taunton Police Department reported one of the victims in a two-car crash about two miles from here definitely had been identified as that of the former province, R. I., newspaper publisher and race track figure.

O'Hara was in the national spotlight during a dispute with Rhode Island authorities while he was managing director of the Narragansett race track. The big racing plant finally was closed by heavily armed national guardsmen, who were called out by the governor.

O'Hara later gave up his race track interest and his newspaper, the Providence Star-Tribune, was purchased by other publishing interests.

O'Connor Seeking Equalization of Pay for Teachers

Three Bills Introduced in Effort To Solve Problem

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 28 (AP)—Administration legislation to equalize white and negro school teachers' salaries started through the General Assembly today, plainly labeled, "do not touch."

Governor O'Connor's carefully-laid-out $106,664,000 biennial budget depends on successful passage of the three bills, sponsored in the Senate by President Arthur Brice (D-Kent), and leaders circulated where they were not to be tampered with.

Under the equalization program, a total of $950,000 would be raised during the next two years—enough to adjust teachers' salaries and pay Baltimore city $125,000 annually as a rebate for revenue lost with repeal of the old securities tax.

Keystones of the plan—embodied in two of the three bills brought in today—are new special taxes on half-mile race tracks and an increase of up to three cents in county tax rates for school purposes.

Added to the revenue thus realized would be funds from an anticipated excess in liquor taxes and reversion of $90,000 from the state board of education's present budget.

Big Yield from Tracks

The proposed race-track tax would levy one per cent on the first $500,000 wagered at each half-mile track two per cent on the next $500,000, and three per cent on total wagers over $1,000,000. In addition, the statute levies an additional fifteen per cent tax on each track's net revenue.

Specifically named in the bill are tracks at Hagerstown, Cumberland, Bel Air, Upper Marlboro and Timonium.

The third bill in the equalization trilogy was a measure deleting "white" from existing law prescribing teachers' salary scales.

Governor O'Connor said he planned to make the pay adjustment effective Jan. 1, 1942.

Pending evidence of legislative reaction to the proposed new taxes, O'Connor has held up introduction of his supplementary budget, now virtually complete. Informed sources expected the added appropriations to "come downstairs" from the executive offices early next week.

Will Move Promptly

With the supplemental budget in, both houses will be in position to move the budget along promptly. The Senate Finance committee budget studies completed, has been marking time for weeks on it while the Ways and Means committee is expected to finish its report Monday afternoon.

Passage of the budget would break a log-jam of appropriations bills and generally speed up action in both houses. Biggest bugaboo to administration whips is the fear of time to be lost in debate over a number of controversial measures backed up in committee files.

Legislation to establish regulations over and supervision of southern Maryland's loose leaf tobacco auction markets was introduced today by Senator J. Wilmer Johnson (D-Calvert). The bill gives the commissioner of tobacco wide authority over the auctions, which are a relatively new development in Maryland's tobacco country.

Fifty-eight free scholarships to Princess Anne Academy and Morgan College, state operated negro schools, would be provided in a bill offered in the House today by Delegates Louis Goldstein (D-Calvert) and James B. Monroe (R-Charles).

Presaging a new legislative assault on Elktion's "quick-marriage" proclivities, Senator Wilmer Fell Davis, Caroline county Republican, introduced legislation to strengthen the existing "48-hour delay" law. His bill would make it a felony for a physician knowingly to falsify a certificate of pregnancy to expedite issuance of a marriage license at Elktion.

The proposal followed disclosure that the Cecil county Circuit Court had waived the legal delay of forty-eight hours between application and issuance of marriage licenses in thirty per cent of the applications filed last year.

Many of these waivers were granted on certificates of pregnancy issued by physicians.

In a contrast to Davis's efforts to strengthen the present law, Delegate Fred Houck (D-Baltimore) proposed a bill in the House to abolish the forty-eight-hour delay entirely. Passage of Houck's measure would restore Elktion as one of the nation's foremost Gretna Greens.

The Senate passed and sent to the governor a House bill to permit issuance by the state education department of certificates equivalent to a high school diploma. The certificates could be obtained by passing examinations in high school subjects which would be given periodically by the education department.

British Destroyer Sunk by U-Boat

LONDON, March 1 (Saturday) (AP)—The British destroyer Exmoor was lost during a German torpedo boat attack on a British convoy in the North Sea Tuesday night, the admiralty announced early today.

The Nazi attack was driven off, however, and it was stated the convoy itself suffered no damage, that rejection of the bill might have a disastrous psychological effect on Great Britain and the small nations which stand under the threat of attack from the Axis.

"Not only these countries may lose hope," he said, "but all over the world, east and west, men may surrender their hopes and their aspirations and the curtain may not rise again for generations. The magnificent courage of Britain might falter if this country—through misguided action—should callously leave the Englishman to his fate."

Galleries Jammed

Wheeler stood at a front row Senate desk, reading his speech at a rapid pace, and wagging a long forefinger at the rostrum to emphasize his points. About thirty senators, mostly opponents of the bill, were at their places. The galleries, as always were jammed and long lines waited admission.

Describing the bill as a "blank check," Wheeler declared: "Having failed in a domestic purge he can inaugurate a purge on an international scale, to rid the world of rulers with whom he disagrees or who may challenge his claims to benevolent dictatorship."

anyone who is afraid that Hitler will attack the United States in thirty days or at any other time. It was drafted by persons who, regardless of cost in lives, liberty or dollars, want desperately to help Great Britain and unspecified other nations."

Wheeler began his formal address after Senator Maloney (D-Conn.), supporting the measure, called for "action—not debate" and said that rejection of the bill might have a disastrous psychological effect on Great Britain and the small nations which stand under the threat of attack from the Axis.

"Not only these countries may lose hope," he said, "but all over the world, east and west, men may surrender their hopes and their aspirations and the curtain may not rise again for generations. The magnificent courage of Britain might falter if this country—through misguided action—should callously leave the Englishman to his fate."

Parties Attended

Wheeler stood at a front row Senate desk, reading his speech at a rapid pace, and wagging a long forefinger at the rostrum to emphasize his points. About thirty senators, mostly opponents of the bill, were at their places. The galleries, as always were jammed and long lines waited admission.

Describing the bill as a "blank check," Wheeler declared: "Having failed in a domestic purge he can inaugurate a purge on an international scale, to rid the world of rulers with whom he disagrees or who may challenge his claims to benevolent dictatorship."

The "catchword" of the bill was "defense," he said, a word which was contradicted by the measure's contents.

Proceeding to an analysis of the bill, he examined first its definition of articles which the president may order manufactured and transferred to Great Britain. The definition was so broad, he said, that it included "all articles from battleships to bath powders, from bombers to the billions of gold buried in Kentucky, from cannon to Willie buttons."

Turning to what he called the "sinister side" of this section of the bill, he said it undoubtedly would empower the president to produce "crutches and artificial limbs and books in Braille type and identification tags and coffins and crosses for the countless future victims of our folly."

The senator described the section authorizing the president to lease, lend, sell or otherwise dispose of war materials to nations whose defense is considered vital to our own as the "heart of the bill—if it has a heart." He called for amendments naming the countries to be helped.

"Actually," he said, "no country is overlooked by the bill, with one exception—the United States itself. The powers conferred x x vast as they are, extend to manufacturing or otherwise procuring defense articles for everybody except Uncle Sam."

In addition, Wheeler attacked what he called the "totalitarian view" that the president's constitutional powers as commander-in-chief of the army and navy are unlimited.

Against Naval Convoys

"The way to deal with this totalitarian school of thought," he said, "is to nip it in the bud. The Congress must assert its authority over the matter of getting us into war here and now and the way to do it is not to yield weakly to such preposterous claims of power but to legislate clearly and positively that our naval vessels shall not be used for convoy purposes, and shall not be sent anywhere on earth outside the western hemisphere, except, of course, to our possessions."

The senator departed from his prepared text to quote Secretary of the Interior Ickes as saying he was "more than ever in favor of daylight saving time in Washington now that we're at war."

"This is the second cabinet officer who has said we are at war," Wheeler shouted. "Where are my gentle friends who say this is a bill to keep us out of war?"

N. J. until the vehicle was freed by plows.

Although Atlantic City reported the heaviest snowfall—nine inches—the resort lived up to its boast: "No snow on the boardwalk." Plows and shovels kept the famed promenade free for hardy strollers. One person was found dead of exposure.

The Wildwood, N. J., fishing fleet of thirty-five boats was reported delayed in reaching home by the storm, described as of gale force at its center 200 miles east of Sandy Hook.

Advancing up the Atlantic coast at the rate of thirty miles an hour, the storm was expected to spend its strength over New England. Five to six inches of snow fell in eastern Pennsylvania during the day. Two traffic fatalities in that state were attributed to hazardous driving conditions.

Two to three inches of snow blanketed northern Alabama and parts of Tennessee.

The wind-borne snow brought a dusk-like gloom to New York City in mid-afternoon. Anticipating a four inch fall before morning, the sanitation department marshaled plow operations and shovellers for all-night work.

Snow fell Thursday night as far south as Valdosta, Ga., eighteen miles from the Florida line, although a bright sun soon cleared the ground. Tennessee reported up to 22 inches of snow at Nashville, while the fall in northern Alabama ranged up to three inches.

Party Leaders Attend Funeral Of Harry Nice

Both Democrats and Republicans Pay Tribute to Former Governor

BALTIMORE, Feb. 28 (AP)—Leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties in Maryland for the past thirty years braved a snowstorm today to attend the funeral of former Governor Harry A. Nice, which took place this afternoon from his residence.

Automobiles lined the snow-covered highway near the residence for an hour before the services.

Governor Herbert R. O'Connor, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, members of the General Assembly and other political leaders crowded the home of the third Republican to serve as Maryland's governor since the Civil war.

Services were conducted by the Rev. Daniel L. Ennis, pastor of Elderale Methodist church.

Friends Are Bearers

Active pallbearers, all close personal friends of Nice, were Thomas B. Ewalt, Dr. Ralph Lange, Howard I. Schultz, Christian Thomas, Frank W. Luthardt and George Clayton.

Honorary pallbearers include not only Republicans with whom Nice had associated politically for many years, but also representatives of all governmental branches of the city and state.

Among them were judges of the supreme bench of Baltimore and of the county circuits.

Those present included State Senator Arthur Brice, president of the Senate, and Thomas E. Conlon, speaker of the House of Delegates; H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, and O. E. Weller, Republican national committeeman from Maryland.

Sen. Reckord Attends

General Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Twenty-ninth Division, represented the military service, and Beverly Ober, head of the state police, attended.

Monumental Commandery, Knights Templar, took charge of ceremonies after brief services by the Rev. Mr. Ennis. The knights conducted ceremonies according to Masonic rites, and burial was in the mausoleum at Greenmount cemetery.

of her empire by the terms of the armistice—with Germany.)

French To Explain Silence

Authoritative sources said the Japanese foreign office planned an extraordinary conference of key officials later this morning to which French and Thai mediation delegates would be invited to hear the French explain their silence.

But first the Japanese officials needed their rest. They had kept the lights burning unavailingly into early morning at the squat, weather-beaten frame building which houses the foreign office in the heart of Tokyo, where they saw midnight come and go.

Hours before expiration time it became apparent that no French reply would be forthcoming. For all that was known, the French ambassador, Charles Arsene Henry, who normally would have presented the reply, was home abed.

Foreign Minister Yoneko Matsukata himself did his waiting at home.

Test of Leadership

What is occurring is the first test of the East Asian leadership assigned to Japan by the three-power pact with Germany and Italy.

Apparently the French, for the moment at least, had found the price too high in Japan's so-called final compromise offer to settle the territorial dispute between Thailand and French Indo-China.

The Japanese proposal, described as a halving of Thailand's original demands for sixty per cent of the Indo-China provinces of Laos and Cambodia, was said to be the minimum acceptable to Thailand.

The French had counter-proposed to cede about one tenth of the original claim and to restrict the cession to Laos, along the Mekong river in northern Indo-China. Thailand contends that the French stripped her of traditionally Thai territory between 1893 and 1904.

The nature of future Japanese action will depend on an analysis of the French explanation, expected today at the foreign office conference. A cabinet spokesman said the possibilities were "too delicate a question" to discuss.

Competent circles expressed the opinion that no "forceful action" would come before the 400-odd business and professional men and other civilians have been removed from Indo-China. This evacuation, already under way, is scheduled for completion March 7.

On that day also the twice-prolonged armistice in border warfare between Indo-China and Thailand will expire.

Some quarters voiced belief that an amicable settlement still was possible, either through Japanese agreement to an extension of the ultimatum time limit or through delayed French capitulation.

Competent Japanese quarters, however, stressed that Japan was prepared for "forceful action"—this to rest with the Japanese military command now in the French colony.

cherished Nazi dream of toppling the British empire with the single lightning stroke of an invasion. One high diplomat here declared that Hitler, always having proceeded on the principle of economy of force, never would attack Greece even at the cost of a few thousand lives unless such a step were vital to his "master plan" of war.

Two Things Needed For Lagging Defense

TWO THINGS are directly needed for promotion of the national defense program, speed in which we are constantly being reminded is urgent. One is unification of the Office of Production Management under a single guiding head in place of the bifurcated monstrosity now obtaining, which is delaying production as much as anything else. The other is a cure for what the New York Herald Tribune tersely designates as a field day for racketeers.

The New York paper points to the testimony given the other day before the House Judiciary committee in Washington by a witness named R. B. Wickiser. This man had been employed as a steam shovel foreman in the construction of an army camp in California until discharged for failure to pay further installments to Local 12 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, of the American Federation of Labor.

Wickiser told the committee he had paid $30 on filing his application to join the union, but, on finding that he was supposed to pay $2 a week until the total reached $63.35, he refused. The contracting company, his employer, urged him to "make peace" with the union, he said, but when he failed to do so fired him. Asked who was paying his expenses to appear before the committee he replied that "the boys on the job" had made up a purse to which union members had contributed. "These men," he declared, "want some protection against this continual buying of a job. . . . If the government is going to make them join the union it ought to protect them."

"Here," says the Herald Tribune, "is a first-hand dramatic recital of an injustice at least as old as the Wagner act but one which has assumed startling prominence with the drive to recruit defense workers. Fresh in mind are complaints of it in the hiring of men for work at Fort Hancock and Monmouth, in New Jersey, where, according to reports, a local of the Hod Carriers' International demanded and got $50 "on the line" from all applicants for jobs as common laborers. There, it appears, the army authorities left the certification of all workers to the unions, and such seems to be the case elsewhere. Of those at Camp Luis Obispo, Wickiser testified, "the quartermaster says they must be union men." And he added: "On a government job if it is not the quartermaster it is the United States engineers who say the men must be union men."

"In other words, the defense program is fast developing into a field day for the union racketeer. One can hardly blame the army authorities or the contractors under them for the condition. In their subservience to union dictation they are merely bowing to the New Deal policy toward labor as expressed in the one-sided Wagner act. As Westbrook Pegler told the Judiciary committee the day before, the government's labor laws 'drive men into unions and give them no protection from union bosses.'"

"What many of these union bosses are like no one knows better than Mr. Pegler, who has done yeoman service in exposing a few of the worst of them. It was the gist of his testimony before the committee that to permit men such as these or the Communist leaders in the Congress of Industrial Organizations to dictate defense employment or to call strikes was an obvious outrage on the national defense effort and on the great mass of workers anxious for a part in it. And so it is."

Thus is the problem presented by the New York newspaper. What should be done about it? Representative Smith, of Virginia, chairman of the House Judiciary committee, is in favor of legislation forbidding the closed shop in defense industries. The Herald Tribune says that, while that proposal may have its points, it does not appear to be the searching remedy the situation requires. What is needed, it declares, is an amendment of the Wagner act penalizing unions and their leaders for coercive labor practices equally with the employer. "The cancer lies deeper than the defense effort," it declares, and "is imbedded in the Wagner act's egregious lack of balance and should be attacked right there."

In view of the labor troubles that have been occurring all over the country in defense industries, which appear to be of serious proportions despite the assurance we have had from the OPM that they don't amount to much, this would appear to be the answer to the question. So long as the remedy suggested lies equally with management and labor, it is hard to see why there should be any objection to it inasmuch as the fundamental purpose of the act would be retained.

Scramble for Wheat After the War

ONE THING a certain college professor dealing with agricultural problems is absolutely right about. The professor is the eminent W. I. Myers, of Cornell University. What he is right about is found in his assertion that after this war there will be a stupendous scramble abroad for food.

Cotton exports, now badly off, may not recover immediately with the cessation of hostilities. Tobacco trade abroad, now shot, may not come back overnight. But the foreign food markets will snap back like a steel spring the minute the blockade is lifted. There isn't a people in Europe that is not now confronted day in and day out with an empty cupboard. Nation after nation is near starvation.

Open up the gates and let out the huge wheat surpluses in the United States and Canada and there will be such a rush for the breadbasket overseas as this world has never witnessed.

A Report on the Fireworks Bill

THE BALTIMORE EVENING SUN has given a report of the status of the Fireworks bill in the General Assembly.

"In the legislature two years ago the Fireworks bill was passed by the House and the prospects of a victory looked bright," it says. "Then it went to the Senate. Not until then did the fireworks manufacturers' lobby get down to real business. Liquor flowed freely, trades were made and in that sordid atmosphere of hypocritical good fellowship and political opportunism the little children blinded and maimed by the explosives were forgotten. The bill went down to defeat."

"This year the Fireworks bill thus far has followed the same path. It has successfully passed the House and now awaits the action of the Senate. The time has come for the manufacturers' lobby to take off its coat and get to work. Yesterday some members of the Senate, though not all, journeyed to Elkton, where fireworks are made. There, at the home of an executive of the company, they were pined with Elkton's hospitality. The mayor of the town mixed the drinks. Soon the Senate will vote. It remains to be seen which will win out, memory of the little children or memory of Elkton's hospitality."

Let it be hoped that the memory of the little children will prevail.

Objections Should Be Fairly Considered

SENATOR GEORGE, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, is to be commended for urging special sittings of his committee to give further consideration to a number of amendments to the Lease-Lend bill.

That is a fair and reasonable recognition of the numerous weighty objections that have been raised against the measure. Senator George has taken the position that these objections can be met without destroying the chief objective of the bill, in which event he would be in favor of such amendments.

Certainly it would be a bad thing for the country if the measure should be forced through Congress without a fair effort to meet reasonable objections. National unity is essential in this present crisis, and it should be kept in mind by all the members of Congress, who should realize that the sentiment of the people is undoubtedly in favor of giving aid to Britain short of war but that such aid would be more than offset by losses in morale and unity at home.

Takes High Place On Roll of Honor

HIGH in the imperishable roll of honor of those who devoted their lives to the cure and alleviation of the ills of their fellows will stand the name of Sir Frederick Grant Banting, co-discoverer of insulin. The full measure of his discovery both in the treatment of diabetes and later in the relief of mental disorders of the dementia praecox type is yet to be taken.

It equals, if it may not ultimately exceed, the beneficent results of Pasteur's explorations. Through the tragic end of Sir Frederick in the crash of a military airplane in Newfoundland it is revealed that he was then proceeding to Great Britain to apply new medical knowledge, particularly in aviation, gained after exhaustive research in Canada. He was intent on carrying on, under perilous circumstances, the business of saving lives.

A problem confronting early civilization, says a lecturer, was what to use for money. If he learns of anything, our legislatures would love to know.

As a diplomat, Playboy Earle is a worthy successor to the spot on the front page formerly filled by Huey Long.

The town of Buquib, Libya, is again in the news. If this keeps up we may, sooner or later, learn how to pronounce it.

Dress Reform for Men?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Some college lads—perhaps only to get their names in the papers—have been trying to start a dress reform for men. They have great ideas for changing completely the garb of men but I'm thinking they've bit off more than they can chew . . . and they've no chance of getting the men to reform their clothes!

Let's begin by admitting the worst about the clothes men wear. . . . The hats are too hot. Funniest thing on earth is a solemn fellow chasing his straw hat down the street. . . . Most uncomfortable thing is a stiff collar. . . . Shirts wear out at the collar at the cuffs, long before the rest goes haywire. . . . Shirts pull up at the belt in a giddy-giddy-gout sort of way. . . . Belts are too loose or too tight, suspenders look silly. . . . Pockets full of trash bulge out here and there. . . . Money pockets get holes in them. . . . Trousers go baggy at the knees. . . . Buttons come off. . . . Trousers bottoms get dirty and frayed. . . . Socks get holes in them. . . . Garters lose their pep and catch the trousers when a man stands up. . . . Shoes aren't so much, either. . . . Feet grow corns and bunions. . . . Hardly anything about a man's clothes is exactly right.

And yet—
We will not reform. We will not go back to the Roman toga nor to "the mediaeval grace of iron clothing nor to doublet and hose—nor forward to track pants and the open-front shirt that the poets wear."

We shall stick with the coats that are padded in the shoulders, to the trousers that flap in the wind, to the shoes with the laces that break, to all the uncomfortable nonsense we have inherited from the past.

We may not like ourselves as we are, but we are USED to the way we look and we refuse to change. Take me! For years I've thought the most comfortable device for holding up the trousers is a six foot strip of cotton or linen cloth the French peasants wear around the waist. It does hold the shirt down and the pants up, besides binding the stomach comfortably. I wore one of those things in France in the other war and liked it. I'd like to wear one here in America. . . . And I would do so, if I had the courage. But since I haven't, I'll never change.

So that's why dress reform for the men is impossible. The bold, brave, stronger sex hasn't the NERVE!

Lowell Mellett (above), director of the office of government reports, asserts that the government is contemplating no press or radio censorship aside from the customary military censorship in the event of war.

Italy Is Now Only A Vassal State, Gen. Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Before his sudden foray by his right flank on Western Europe and when there was still some speculation as to whether he would not team up with Italy and strike France by his left flank, Hitler is reported to have said that he didn't even want Mussolini to enter the war—that with Benito neutral he didn't need to worry about that sector, but if it came in he would have to detach thirty German divisions to protect him.

There was good sense in that. The French general staff had somewhat the same idea about Benito. The only offensive they had planned against Hitler was to strike Mussolini and they expected it to be a jovial. Before that could develop, Adolf had sidestepped them on the other side and Benito took what he thought was his opportunity.

As a modern war power, Italy simply doesn't exist and, in comparison with the rest, hasn't existed in our time. No nation can really be formidable in modern war without having access to three great industries—chemical, metallurgical and manufacturing. Italy has had none of these. She is just a long salient stuck out into the Mediterranean where she is as vulnerable and uncomfortable as a sore thumb.

She is just a long salient stuck out into the Mediterranean where she is as vulnerable and uncomfortable as a sore thumb.

A Receiver in Bankruptcy

The world knows the result. Mr. Hitler was right the first time. Reports make it clear daily that he has simply had to appoint himself receiver in bankruptcy for busted Benito, with all the risks and responsibilities that the job implies. Italy has become a vassal state to Germany and, for however long it may last, it is a fact worth remark that Hitler has thereby restored approximately the boundaries of the empire of Charlemagne in which the inclusion of Italy according to the great world historian Dupuy "lost thereby its independence for ten centuries."

As a modern war power, Italy simply doesn't exist and, in comparison with the rest, hasn't existed in our time. No nation can really be formidable in modern war without having access to three great industries—chemical, metallurgical and manufacturing. Italy has had none of these. She is just a long salient stuck out into the Mediterranean where she is as vulnerable and uncomfortable as a sore thumb.

Dependent on Others

Once, as a great sea power as well as a great land power, she ruled the world, but that was when it was principally a Mediterranean world and when armies meant little more than massed muscular man power. Even then she was dependent on the rest of the world for nearly all her metal and most of her food. Her principal value to Hitler was her threat to North Africa, a bottle neck in the Mediterranean and such naval and military materiel and munitions as she had accumulated through the years.

Her equipment has been proved obsolete, the threat to North Africa is over and, so far as she is concerned, the bottleneck has been broken. Benito was the worst bargain that Adolf ever bought. Now that bargain is his baby and the care and policing of it is going to take a considerable part of his military, naval and airpower that he may need desperately elsewhere.

There is something terribly pathetic about it. No people wanted to fight the Italian people and it is very apparent that the Italian people didn't want to fight anybody else.

Leadership Important

Perhaps a more cynical aspect of this terrible example is to those who say: "No democracy can fight a war. Only dictatorships can make the swift decisions necessary in modern conflict. Democracies must become dictatorships before they can fight dictatorships." Well, Italy was an all-out dictatorship and now look at the damned thing. Stalin's is a dictatorship but, as a war government, nothing to write home about.

The truth seems to be that the real question is not so much of the form of government as to the quality of leadership for war. Maybe a bad leader could do more harm under a dictatorship than under a democracy. Maybe a good leader can conduct a pretty successful war under either form of government. Anyway, that is about what the history book seems to say—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

NO CENSORSHIP

Lowell Mellett (above), director of the office of government reports, asserts that the government is contemplating no press or radio censorship aside from the customary military censorship in the event of war.

KEEPING IT IN THE BOTTLE WILL BE A LOT EASIER

Rebuke for Jones Seen though Talk By First Lady Gets the Soft Pedal

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Jesse Jones, commerce secretary (also federal loan administrator and export-import bank director), is the hardest high official in Washington just now to extract an interview from.

To be sure, President Roosevelt has said he wasn't referring to Jesse especially when he described such remarks as that "we're nearly in it" as mere "mouthing of words that don't mean anything." Nevertheless, Jesse was the last individual who had just mouthed them, as a witness before the House of Representatives Banking committee, before F. D. R. expressed himself on the subject.

Washington's popular verdict is that, while maybe he didn't refer to his commerce secretary ESPECIALLY, he certainly must have intended to include him.

Plenty of isolationist representatives and senators made remarks substantially the same as Jesse's in the course of congressional debate relative to the Lease-Lend plan. They undoubtedly were prepared to be presidentially characterized as mere "meaningless mouthing."

It struck listeners-in, however, as rather a different thing to have the chief executive so designate one of his own cabinet members.

As applied to the isolationist lawmakers, it was an observation which the capital was inclined to interpret as simply an answer to their anti-administration utterances.

Rebuke from the Boss?

In Jesse's case it sounded to most hearers like a rebuke from the boss to an indiscreet subordinate—and a darned scorching one.

Jesse evidently knew he'd committed something awful the minute he'd said what he did to the Banking committee, for he hastily told the committee's stenographer to omit it from his notes, so it didn't go into the official record.

Seemingly, it didn't occur to him, though, to warn newspaper reporters at the hearing not to quote him. Or, perhaps, as a newspaper publisher himself, he realized that they'd quote him anyway. They did, too, and their editors played his testimony up prominently.

Jesse attempted to comment following his spanking—for a spanking is what everybody thinks it was, even if the president did explain that the spansks were not aimed at his stern ESPECIALLY.

Indeed, there wasn't much comment he could have indulged in profitably.

He simply has closed up tighter than a clam, which is unfortunate from a reportorial standpoint, for hitherto he's been a first-rate news source, and probably due to his personal journalistic connection, an unusually intelligent one.

Washington's correspondents would like to know what's F. D. R.'s opinion of a talk Mrs. F. D. R. made a few days ago before Hunter College's alumnae, faculty and students.

The first lady's address hasn't been published—not in the capital's press, at any rate.

First Lady's View

However, it has appeared in print that, answering questions from her collegiate audience, she stated that while opposing war, there are "some things worth dying for."

That, of course, wasn't the same thing as saying "we're nearly in it," as Jesse Jones put it.

Still, query the correspondents, didn't it verge on it?

Nobody has had the nerve to put this question up to the White House directly; it would be pretty sassy. But there's a lot of wondering about it.

What Mrs. Roosevelt said appeared in the same issue of the same newspapers as the story of President Roosevelt's job at "meaningless mouthings." It's natural that there's considerable paralleling of the two yarns.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she was OPPOSED to war. Well, Jesse Jones didn't say he was in favor of it. All he said was that "we're nearly in it." Neither did he say that there are "some things worth dying for." That was stronger than anything he said.

But Jesse got spanked. There's no news that Mrs. F. D. R. was even reprimanded.

Strike Vote but No Strike

From the Pittsburgh Press

Fourteen of the twenty-one standard railway unions have decided to take a strike vote. Their spokesmen say the railway managements refuse to hold a national conference for discussion of a demand for vacations with pay.

This might be terrifying news, presenting the prospect that the defense program will be paralyzed by a strike of these unions 750,000 members. It might be—but it is not. For the country has every reason to believe that there will be no railway strike.

The management may yield and consent to a national conference, instead of separate conferences for each road. If they do not, the vote may be taken and it may be to strike. But still the public will not need to worry, because there is the tested machinery of the Railway Labor Act.

Under this law, the unions will file a formal demand. Then representatives of unions and managements will meet and attempt to negotiate a settlement. If that fails, the National Mediation Board will attempt to mediate the dispute. If that fails, voluntary arbitration will be proposed. If either side declines to go to arbitration, President Roosevelt will appoint a fact-finding board. This board will have thirty days to investigate the merits of the controversy and make a report—a guide to public opinion. And then, only after another thirty-day period, during which public opinion would exert its pressure for a peaceful settlement, would the unions be free to strike or the managements to change working conditions.

This is the procedure that for many years has prevented serious stoppages of work on the railways, and it can be depended upon to operate successfully in the present controversy.

Sidney Hillman and other defense officials have said that most labor-industry disputes are being settled satisfactorily, and that so far no need has developed for new legislation to prevent strikes. We believe that is true. But it is good to know that, if the need should develop, we have in the Railway Labor Act a model after which such legislation might be shaped to promote peace in all industries.

Living Rods Do Discover Things, Scientists Assert

By EDWIN C. HILL

Recently in the day's news, hot wire or the cables, we find a long abridgment of the somewhat boring "thought for"

"of hoary has old as himself—and we seem to be finding a satisfactory solution of a long-forgotten problem. . . . Friday are a separate field discovery—Edwin C. Hill"

of the "dowsing" or driving of it broadly, just to start with, Dr. Hans T. F. Lundberg, Swedish—born geologist and mining engineer, now in Toronto, Canada, finds the horsetail plant of the meadow, not the forked hazel twig—gold.

Leo Horvitz, metallurgist of the Rex Company of Houston, Texas, forward a device to local, deep in the earth, due to its sensitivity to hydrocarbon gas, capable from oil fields. Dr. Rosaire, another highly certified scientist, offers a divining rod he calls "Madam X." He has a certain inorganic mineral in soil above oil deposits, and "Madam X" registers or quivers whatever it does, when there's slow.

Scientists' Find

This is a surprise to learn, as up the literature on the subject many of the most skeptical scientists of the last two centuries—been baffled by the divining. They have, of course, put aside all supernatural explanations almost invariably when they checked on the workings of the forked hazel twig or the white, supposedly locating for minerals deep in the earth, have been puzzled and bewild.

Professor Barrett, a Fellow of the Royal Society of England, concluded a series of investigations, that of the "dowsers" possess a "fine super-normal perceptivity," so that "the faintest impulse made by the object searched creates an involuntary or automatic motion of the indicator, never it may be."

"Like the instinct of certain birds and snails, the dowsers' power lies beneath the level of any conscious perception; and the function of the forked twig is to act as an index of some material or other mental disturbance within him without which it could not interpret."

Humble Men Best Users

Professor Barrett discovered that the best "users" were "humble" men, simple-minded, generally "more or less glib," he might have added out of the mouths of babes and sucklings. As to the forked twig in searching for water, Professor Barrett gives decision to the "dowsers" as against scientists, as follows:

"Making liberal allowance for failure of which I have heard, I have no hesitation in saying that where fissure water and the discovery of underground water sufficient for a domestic supply is a matter of utmost urgency, the chances of success with a good dowsing far exceed monkey bits, or the success obtained by the most skillful observer, even with full knowledge of local geology."

Queen Elizabeth was a firm believer in the effectiveness of divining rods, in locating both water and metals, and many German dowsers were brought to Cornwall to locate mines. It is undeniably true, says Professor Barrett and others, that many of the great Cornish mines were located by this method.

Lost in Middle Ages

Much of the ancient lore of the divining rod was lost in the Middle Ages, and brought to light again by Basil Valentine, a crude, old alchemist of the eighteenth century, given to strange hocus-magic which strangely pointed the way to modern chemistry. And thus a reminder that the astrologers saved the way for Copernicus and our understanding of the heavens and our while, while the classical alchemists of all time was giving the day of chemistry its sense off.

Some deep intuition seems to in far ahead of cold, objective fact. Picking the horsetail plant as an indicator of gold, Dr. Lundberg's story appears out of its proper context of about 4,000 years along the old road of our dreams of magical wealth.

If your divination, whatever it may be, tells you that the future isn't so bright and you decide to seek one basic security of land, and you get some acreage, say, within an hour's drive of New York's skyscrapers, you will find a professional "dowsing" ready to locate water for you.—Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"Begin giving vitamin-D when the baby is about two weeks old."

"Give vitamin-D every day."

"Give enough cod-liver oil or other vitamin-D preparation to supply 800 units of vitamin-D daily, or more if recommended by the doctor."

"Keep cod-liver oil or other oil containing vitamins in a tightly stoppered bottle in a cool place away from the light."

Ways of Giving Cod-Liver Oil

Inasmuch as your pediatrician can best know your baby's needs, you will do well to follow his advice regarding the sun substitute your baby should have.

Though many nursery schools give cod-liver oil in orange juice, it probably is unwise to do so at home. Few mothers are as unemotional as the nursery school teacher nor does the home have the aid of the group to make drinking the fruit juice with cod-liver oil in it the thing to do. Unfortunately, some children taking cod-liver oil or medicine in fruit juice learn to hate fruit juice.

Give cod-liver oil to a child of two to six years in a spoon. He can learn to like it, even to beg for it, as some children do. If he refuses it avoid any scene. Have a competent assistant and put it into him with skill until he volunteers to cooperate.

How smart is your baby? You may have without cost a chart to aid you in ascertaining approximately the development of your baby in comparison with that of average babies his age. Who Are You?

A distant relative of Sally Haines had been whimsical to the point of leaving her millions, the report stated, merely because the benefactor disliked every other member of the family whom he knew personally. Miss Haines would move in better circles hereafter, under the watchful eye of Bannerman, Oakes & Whiteley, of course.

"I've been detailed to sort of guard you, Miss Haines!" Jimmy said late the following morning to Sally as she approached a waiting cab. He assisted her into the taxi and signaled to the driver to move on.

"Who are you?" the young girl demanded, giving the single dimple in her right cheek full play. Jimmy relaxed. He was going to like this job!

"From now on, I'm the luckiest man on earth!" he announced bravely. "I talked to Mr. Bannerman yesterday. Where are you headed for now, Miss Haines? I'd like to know—just because I'm going to be a sort of bodyguard for you from now on!" The girl's blue eyes, with their long, curved, black lashes, swept over Jimmy and suddenly were smiling.

"I'm going downtown on a grand shopping spree, Mr.—. What did you say your name was?" Jimmy grinned.

"Crittenden. Special friends call me Jimmy!" he supplied. "I think I know just the kind of shopping a pretty young girl with sudden wealth would do. Let me handle things for you!"

"Don't you suppose every girl knows what she'd do, provided she had the money?" she deflated him. "You just tag along and watch my smoke!" Jimmy subsided momentarily. The sudden heiress knew what she wanted, all right, and as long as she didn't inquire too closely into his profession, he'd wait.

For two delicious weeks Jimmy went the rounds with Sally. She did most of the things he thought that she would do—first the beauty shops, then clothing, then afternoon matinees of the best shows in town. She bought a new car, moved to a quietly modern apartment uptown. The hand of Bannerman was discreetly evident everywhere in the preconceived program.

You know, Sally, I think sometimes that I'm being an altruistic sap!" he declared soberly after an evening at the opera and a session at a swank night spot. "I thought I'd save your real story until I got to know you. Every day, against my better judgement, I've been feeding my paper only the prepared stories—verbatim—that Bannerman feeds me!"

"And now?" Sally's blue eyes were serious for once. "I knew you were a reporter the first time I saw you. I suppose you're going to print some cheap story about me. But if that's your business..." Jimmy caught her hand as she hesitated.

"Wait a minute, Sally!" he interrupted earnestly. "Maybe a week ago I would have done the story without thinking of how it would affect you. I can't now—because I think I've fallen in love. And I can't act like a dog toward someone I love, any more than I can ask a certain question of a girl with millions, can I?"

"Jimmy!" Sally's hand tightened inside his and her lips pinched in sudden fright. Her eyes were filled with the same light as his. "I'm only a farce! Bannerman cooked

THE DAILY STORY

INSIDE TIP

He Knew She Was a Phoney Right from the Start, but That Didn't Have Anything to Do with the Blueness of Her Eyes

BY GLENN REILEY
"I'm sorry, Mr. Crittenden, but you can't see Miss Haines at the present time!" the housekeeper told Jimmy with a trace of impatience in her voice. She held Jimmy's calling card closer to her eyes. "I suppose you're another newspaper gentleman?" she queried.

Jimmy nodded, none too happily. "Listen, madam," he returned gently, careful not to let his Irish nature creep up and spoil a good story. "My paper got an inside tip from Sally Haines' lawyer's office that uable publicity if you'll play ball with me. How about it?" Bannerman considered. "Exactly so. I've anticipated this—unpublicity that you mention. I have ready for you a sheet giving the details, but I must withhold the name of the benefactor. Everything else will appear on the sheet for your use." He pulled open a desk drawer and slid a sheet of legal foolscap across the desk to Jimmy.

The reporter scanned the typing swiftly. It was all there, evidently

ODDS IN SLAM DOUBLES
DID YOU ever calculate the odds against you if you double the opponents' slam contract? Leave out the question of whether your double helps the declarer make his contract, and simply reckon how many extra points your double gets you if you set him one trick, as against how many he gets from it if you don't set him. Take the not vulnerable situation first, with a major suit small slam. If he makes it, you double the value of his tricks, which is 180, giving him that many extra. If you set him one, you double your score of 50, giving you an extra 50. So are you willing to wager 180 to 50, or nearly 4 to 1, you will beat him? If not, don't double.

Stock Market Ends February with Mild Rally Led by Utility Shares

Power Company Issues Aided by Support of S.E.C. Commissioner

By FREDERICK GARDNER
NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—The stock market today stepped out of February with mild rallying tendencies stressed mainly by a belated upswing in long-dormant utilities.

Steels wavered and slipped after touching off a quiet forenoon advance. Except for the power company issues, which pushed forward in the final hour, earlier advances of fractions to a point or so for industrials were substantially reduced or cancelled at the close.

Transfers of 405,880 shares were the largest since Feb. 20. The utility group was enlivened by the testimony of S. E. C. Commissioner Pike before the temporary National Economic committee suggesting insurance firms might invest some of their funds in common stocks of sound power and light companies.

Steel Strike an Influence
Settlement by the government of the Bethlehem steel strike brought in moderate bidding after a hesitant start, brokers said, but this influence apparently waned when the thought occurred to some that the corporation might be the loser in the final adjustment of its labor difficulties. Threats of union rifts in other quarters also dimmed market enthusiasm to some extent.

Among stocks Electric Power & Light preferred gained three points, a jump of fractions to a point or more were retained by Consolidated Edison, Public Service of N. J. North American American Water Works, Peoples Gas and United Gas, preferred. Ahead also were Harnam Kodak, Woolworth, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Youngstown Sheet, Douglas Aircraft and Anacida.

Losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler General Motors, American Telephone, U. S. Rubber, American Can and J. C. Penney. Curb gainers included Jones & Laughlin, Todd Shipyards, Niagara Power, American Gas, Electric Bond & Share and E. W. Bliss. The turnover here was around 88,000 shares versus 66,000 Thursday.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (AP)—Touched off by a 100,000 bushel order, another wave of buying swept over the wheat pit today during the first half hour, lifting prices almost two cents to the best level in more than a month.

After May wheat reached a high of 84 1/2 and July 80 1/2, however, the market quieted down and, under pressure of profit taking, gave up part of the gain.
Wheat closed 1 1/4 higher than yesterday, May 83 1/2, July 79 1/2; corn 1/2 up, May 60 1/2, July 60 1/2; oats 1/4 higher; soybeans 1/4 higher; rye 1/2 up and lard 2-8 higher.

YOU SAY YOU'D LIKE TO TALK TO ME CONFIDENTIALLY, MR. DEPOOL?

IT'S A VICIOUS CASE THAT'LL BLOW YOUR HAT RIGHT OFF, BUT WE CAN'T TALK HERE!

What? No Variety during Lent?

If You're Used To That Table Talk, Here's An Answer

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

Fish and their shell kinkof stimulate Lenten food interest and help keep down the cost of living, while at the same time solving meatless meal problems. Here are some sure-fire suggestions, brimful of vitamins and minerals needed for the spring buildup.

Halibut royale goes swanky for luncheon or dinner serving. Dip 2 pounds of halibut steak, cut in individual servings, in 1 egg yolk mixed with 3 tablespoons cold water and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Sprinkle with flour and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Place in a shallow, well greased baking pan. Cover with 1/2 cup diced celery and cup of sliced mushrooms. Brush with melted butter and bake 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Cover and bake 10 minutes. Carefully remove to serving platter and surround with lemon cups filled with tartar sauce.

Make the sauce like this: Mix 3 tablespoons each of chopped olives and sweet pickles in 1/2 cup stiff mayonnaise, add 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1/4 teaspoon chopped olives (or onions) and 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Pass in a small dish.

Try this salmon loaf, and family and budget will sing its praises. Mix 1 cup boiled rice or macaroni with a pound can of salmon; add 2 beaten eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickles, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon each of chopped parsley, celery salt and paprika and 3 tablespoons butter, melted. Pour into buttered ring mold (or loaf) and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350). Unmold and surround with creamed peas or green beans.

For oyster devotees, Oyster Fritters will hit the spot. Mix a cup of flour with 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon celery salt, egg yolk and 1/4 cup water. Beat until smooth, fold in beaten egg white and 3 tablespoons fat, melted. Sprinkle 1 1/2 cups large oysters with 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper and tablespoon lemon juice. Dip oysters in batter and fry quickly in deep hot fat. Drain.

Piquante Sauce makes a pert partner for any fish dish. Mix 1/2 cup chili sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon horseradish, 1/4 teaspoon each of salt, sugar and celery seed and 1/4 teaspoon paprika.

As the answer to the hunger question, try fish supreme. Choose fish steak or fillets, your favorite flavor. Wipe them with a damp cloth, then dip the fish in yolk mixed with equal portions of milk. Dip in crumbs and sprinkle with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Brown quickly in fat, melted in frying pan. Spread the fish lightly with catsup, and cover. Cook over moderate heat for 15 minutes. Transfer to heated platter and surround with egg sauce.

Least but not least comes stuffed fish. This food is an epicure's delight. Corn stuffing is delicious. Mix 1 cup cooked corn, 1 cup cubed toast, 1 teaspoon each of chopped parsley, onions and celery, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika and 4 tablespoons butter, melted. Lightly stuff a cleaned fish of about 3 1/2 pounds in weight. Brush the top of the fish, after it has been placed in baking pan, with 2 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Sprinkle lightly with flour, salt and pepper. Bake an hour in a moderate oven. Baste twice with 2 tablespoons butter mixed into 3 tablespoons boiling water.

Unlike other South American nations, Argentina and Uruguay are populated chiefly by persons of European descent.

Lobster does itself proud amidst lettuce leaves topped with hard cooked eggs and tomatoes. Served with rolled watercress sandwiches and tea.

A DELICIOUS CAKE WITH CRANBERRIES

For that special dessert try this delicious cake recipe. Though actually a lemon cake with cranberry topping, the topping is colorful enough to make the name.

Ingredients: For the cake — two cups sifted flour, one cup sugar, one-fourth cup shortening, three-fourths cup milk, one egg, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon lemon extract and one-fourth teaspoon salt. For the topping—two-thirds cup jelly cranberry sauce, one-third cup walnut meats, three tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, and one-fourth teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg.

Directions: For the cake—cream shortening and sugar together, beating until light and fluffy. Beat egg and add to shortening-sugar mixture. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk. Beat until batter is smooth, then add lemon extract and pour into greased cake pan. Spread with mixture of topping ingredients and bake for fifty minutes in moderate oven.

The word crab in crab-apples is used in the Middle English sense. It refers to the disagreeable, sour, astringent taste of the apple.

NEW WAY TO SERVE WATERCRESS SALAD

Watercress, like spinach, is supposed to be rich in vitamins. Here's another way of serving this delicious green.

Ingredients: two bunches watercress, crisp slices of bacon (one for each serving), some scallions (small onions), one cup olive oil, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon Worcestershire, one teaspoon vinegar, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon white pepper, one-half teaspoon horse-radish and one-fourth teaspoon dry mustard.

Directions: Make a nippy dressing by putting the last eight ingredients in a bowl with a piece of ice about the size of an egg and whipping until completely mixed. For each serving (above dressing is enough for five), chop one slice of bacon and one small onion. Toss with washed and picked-over crisp watercress. Just before serving, blend in the dressing.

For Better Flavor

Add a speck of sugar to the water when cooking corn, peas or carrots. The vegetables will have a little better flavor.

More than $200,000,000 is being spent in and near Oakland, Calif., on national defense projects.

HERE IS A DIFFERENT WAY TO SERVE STEAK

When there's a chill in the air we need extra fuel for the furnace and the body. What coal or other fuel will do for the furnace, a healthy steak will do for the body. A different way to serve the steak is to "roll your own."

Ingredients: two pounds round steak one-half inch thick, two cups ground ham, one cup tomatoes, one-fourth cup thin cream, one-fourth cup flour, two tablespoons melted butter, one tablespoon prepared mustard and salt to season.

Directions: Combine ham, butter, cream, mustard and salt and spread mixture over the steak. Roll and tie or skewer steak, then roll in salted flour and brown in a hot, greased skillet. Place browned steak in a hot, greased baking dish, add tomatoes, cover and bake at moderate temperature until tender.

Make Pinwheels Of Deviled Ham

Deviled ham pinwheels are delicious for tea or cocktail table. Spread rich biscuit dough, flatten? ed out, with deviled ham moistened with tangy salad dressing. Roll up quickly and cut off one-third inch slices. Bake flat sides up seven minutes in a baking pan. Serve hot.

Dress for Stale Cake

In case that plain cake begins to get stale, here is a good way to dress it up and make it taste extraordinarily good. Make a sauce for it by creaming together one-half cup butter and three-fourths cup honey. Add three-fourths cup fruit nectar (apricot, plum, pear or peach) and boil briskly about four minutes. Cool to lukewarm and serve on cake.

But you don't have to wait for the cake to get stale.

THIS POTATO DISH WILL GIVE FAMILY A WELCOME CHANGE

Many families eat potatoes two or three times a day, and strangely enough, seldom get tired of them. Perhaps it is because potatoes are regarded by many as an essential, like bread. The potato, of course, is one of our economical foods, but there is no particular reason one should serve fried potatoes, baked potatoes or mashed potatoes every time. So, surprise your family some evening by leaving potatoes out of the regular menu and then serving them for dessert. Serve potato pudding.

Boil enough potatoes so that when they are rubbed through a sieve you have just one and a half pounds of mealy white potatoes. Then melt two tablespoons butter, stir into the butter a tablespoon of flour and add a cup of milk as this mixture is slowly heated. Put the potatoes on the stove and stir in the hot milk mixture a little at a time. This done, add a cup of sugar, a teaspoon of salt, a tablespoon of chopped lemon peel, the beaten yolks of six eggs, and finally fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Next put your potato pudding into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve with cream or some appropriate sauce.

Baked Beans In New Guise

Try these baked bean Sunday supper tip. Scoop out centers of rusks or hard rolls, spread with melted butter, brown in the oven, then fill with baked beans mixed with chopped cooked ham or any other leftover meat. Return to the oven to heat for ten minutes, then top with a little catsup and chopped parsley and hustle to the table.

It is said that fifty-three per cent of all accidents are injuries to the arm and hand.

SOME MORE USEFUL CULINARY HINTS

Keep small objects such as buttons, marbles and pins off the floor and away from small children. Hot sweetened fresh apple, prune or apricot sauce is good with hot cornbread, muffins or pancakes. Good way to keep the kitchen table clean while cooking and baking is to keep a shallow pan or utility tray on your work table to hold spoons, measuring cups, knives, etc.

In setting table for guests allow twenty-four to thirty inches of space for each person if you want them to be comfortably seated. If your family is a "sweet tooth" one, you can agreeably surprise them by putting a teaspoon of honey into each cored apple before baking.

The Authority of Christ

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 2 is Luke 19:1-20:8, the Golden Text being Luke 6:46, "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?")

THE EVENTS which take place in our lesson today happened during the end of March, A. D. 29, while Jesus and his apostles were on their way to Jerusalem from Peraea.

When they came to Jericho a crowd was on hand to see this Man of whom the people had heard so much. At Jericho lived a man—a tax collector—named Zacchaeus, who had gained wealth, but was despised by the Jews because he gathered taxes for their enemies and captors, the Romans. Zacchaeus was a small man, and as the crowd pressed around the Master, he could not see what was going on. So he climbed a tree by the roadside to get a view.

When Jesus came by He looked up in the tree, saw Zacchaeus, and called to him: "Zacchaeus, make haste and come down; for today I must abide at thy house."
You can imagine how overjoyed and honored was Zacchaeus. He hurried down and received the Lord joyfully. Of course there was murmuring in the crowd that the Lord was gone to be the guest of a sinner. But Zacchaeus was not a sinner—not any more. "Behold, Lord," he said, "the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold."

And Jesus answered him: "This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham."

"For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Parable of Noblemen and Servants
Jesus then told the parable of the nobleman who was forced to go on a journey to receive a kingdom. He called his ten servants, gave each one a pound and went his way. On his return he asked three of his men for an accounting. The first said he had invested it and gained ten pounds; the second had five in place of the one. But the third said that his lord was a hard man and he had been afraid to do anything with the money but keep it in a napkin to give back to him. The nobleman was angry with this man and took away the one pound and gave it to the man who had ten, saying that as he had not known how to handle the one pound wisely, he should lose it. The lesson we learn from this parable is that we must use our talents and opportunities, even if they are small or we, too, will lose them.

Now when Jesus arrived at the Mount of Olives from where He could see Jerusalem, He sent two of His disciples into a village and told them where they would find a colt tied. They were to untie the colt and bring him to the Master. If the owner asked them why they were taking it, they were to say, "Because the Lord hath need of him."

Most of us think of Jesus as a Man of mild manner and rather self-effacing. But He must have had great dignity and charm. Mothers felt free to bring their babes to Him, but He was invariably treated respectfully. He had an air of authority. When He gave orders they were obeyed. When the colt or donkey was brought, the disciples put their cloaks on him and seated Jesus on his back. Then they started their journey, with the multitude shouting "hosannas" and laying their garments down in front of the colt.

Pharisees Would Stop Hosannas
There were some Pharisees among the crowd and they asked Jesus to stop the joyous cries of the people, "Master, rebuke your disciples," they said. But Jesus said, "I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." When He saw the city of Jerusalem spread out before Him, however, Jesus wept and mourned that it had not listened to Him, and foretold that the city would be besieged and laid in ruins—which happened 40 years later. The Lord knew too well that this triumphal entry of His into Jerusalem was but an intlude. That it would be but a short time before these same people, so joyously hailing Him as their Saviour, would be shouting, "Crucify Him, crucify Him."

"And He entered into the temple," and there found money changers, people selling various things to the pilgrims and desecrating the holy place. And He turned immediately and said, "It is written, And My house shall be a house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of robbers." He then taught daily in the temple. The chief priests and scribes and principal men of the people sought to destroy Him, but they did not dare make a move against Him, for the people hung upon His words, trying to trap Him. However, they asked Him, "by what authority doest thou these things?"

He answered them with another question: "The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men?" They could not answer Him. If they said from heaven, the Lord would say, "Why, then, believed ye him not?" If they said of men, the people would stone them because they believed John was a prophet. So they answered that they could not tell whence it was. "Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things," Jesus quietly answered.

The Lord knew that all these men wanted was some excuse to put Him to death. It was useless to talk to men whose hearts were set on murder.

CHAPTER TWENTY
BILL GOT up and crossed the room in his bare feet. He took down the paper, and saw upon it a carefully printed message from Joel.

"Be back sometime," said the words. "Don't worry about me if I'm late. Have gone down to get Eve. You might polish up her car while I'm gone. I'm sure she'll appreciate it. It will give you an opportunity to see how the guinea pig looks when grateful."

For a moment after reading the message Bill stood with it in his hand—staring, unbelieving.

"Why, the—the cook-eyed so-and-so!" he said half aloud.

Then he remembered the time Uncle John had taken Joel to the circus over at the county seat, and not taken him. "It's your own fault," Joel had said later. "You would stay in bed and sleep!" So this, Bill now thought, was one of those times when history got busy and repeated itself. He crumpled the paper, tossed it into the fireplace and went out to the kitchen.

Joel had left the coffee on the stove to keep hot. Three slices of bacon were in the iron pan ready to be cooked. Two eggs were on the table. Several slices of bread for toasting. Bill looked at them and thought that Joel seemed at times to have a sort of housewife complex. Leaving everything so darned neat and precise.

He fixed his breakfast, ate it, and then stepped out of doors.

Eve's car stood in the road near the vegetable garden. There appeared to be nothing the matter with it; nothing except the dirty streaks where it had almost lain upon its side among the collards. On the running board was a bundle of rags and a bottle of oil for cleaning. Just a not too subtle invitation to Bill to get busy.

"Oh, well," he said to himself, "why not?"

Presently he was giving Eve's antiquated bus a beauty treatment, wondering the while just what had gotten into Joel. Once upon a time Joel wouldn't have bothered to drive for miles to get a girl, certainly not a girl whom he had just met. And hadn't he said upon their leaving the cabin unless it was absolutely necessary? Of course he had. And going after Eve didn't come under the head of necessary things. Certainly not, when he, Bill, could very easily have gone back to Hickory Gap. Besides, Joel knew darned well that he wanted to stick the girl—be with her as that still showed signs of having much as possible. Maybe Joel was content to stay on in the mountains indefinitely, but he wasn't. That meant he would have to work fast if he was going to make Eve the outstanding heroine of his writing career.

He bent over the dented mud-guard of Eve Allgood's car and put all his strength into the polishing job. It was one way to work off his annoyance with Joel.

While down in Hickory Gap Joel was talking with the manager of the general store.

"And I'll also need a new mail box," he said. "The one I've got is all rusty and worn."

"I reckon it's high time it was," said the store manager. "I mind the time your Uncle John bought it off me..." He scratched his head. "It must be high on to ten year ergo."

"That smaller one will do," Joel went on. "It looks like a good solid one. I may be coming up pretty often from now on, and I might as well get something substantial."

"Going to be up long this time?" "Not sure yet..." Depends upon how things are back home."

From the store Joel went to the post office. There he arranged to have the mail delivered by the Rural Free Delivery man.

"Some mail for you here now," said the postmaster. "For you and Mr. William Latham. He up there, too?"

"Yes, Mr. Latham's up there, too," Joel said, smiling as he pictured Bill's expression when he found the message on the mantel.

He pocketed the handful of letters given him and turned to go. At the door he paused and said: "By the way, can you tell me how to get to the Allgood residence?"

"I low as how I can," the postmaster replied. He went out upon the narrow porch with Joel and pointed. "You go right down this here Main street until you come to that old barn with the sagging roof, you turn left there, and then—"

"You mean it's that white house I can see through the trees?" Joel cut in.

"Yes, that's it! You can't miss it."

"No, I don't think I can," said Joel. "Thanks a lot."

He drove off, wondering why it was that people in the country always made such a to-do about telling anyone directions. Maybe it was because they liked to prolong their contacts with people from the outside world.

Then as he drew near the house he saw that still showed signs of having once worn a nice coat of white paint he found himself hoping that Eve would be glad to see him. After all, Bill had given her to understand that he would come down for her. Maybe she would be disappointed. He could remember many a time when girls had been disappointed when he appeared at a party or an entertainment and Bill hadn't.

Eve was in the front yard with her mother when he stopped his car at the picket gate. The two of them were tying rose bushes to stakes. He watched them for a moment, thinking what a nice picture they made with the old house as a background. Then he honked the horn very gently.

Eve looked up and saw him. She gave a little gasp of surprise. And Joel, seeing her expression, was quite sure that the surprise was a pleasant one for her. It gave him a warm sort of glow.

"Hello, Eve!" he greeted. "How's the ankle?"

"Oh, it's getting along splendidly," Eve replied, coming to meet him at the gate.

"Will you be able to drive your car?"

"Yes, I think so—if I don't try any stunts." Eve held out her hand. "It's a bit grimy from the grubbing, but I hope you don't mind."

"I should say not!" Joel took the hand, gave it a friendly pressure. "You've got a swell little place here," he said, looking around. "I like it."

"Thank you," Eve said. "We're trying to make it look like a home and not an abandoned wreck. Did Bill get home all right?"

"Yes, he did. He was sleeping so soundly I hated to disturb him, so I came down for you myself. I had some other errands to do, and—"

"So I'm an errand!" Eve laughed. She didn't wait for Joel to say anything, but introduced him to her mother.

"So this is the other young man you were telling me about!" said Mrs. Allgood.

"Yes, Mother," said Eve. "This is the one who rescued me."

Joel grinned.

"And I usually am the 'other' young man," he said, "where my cousin is concerned."

Eve looked at him. "Don't tell me you've got one of those inferiority things you read about in books on psychology?" she said.

"I wouldn't know about that," said Joel. "I've been too busy with cotton mills to go in for psychology."

Thieves Ransack Quarters of Eckhart Community Group

Jobless Man, 33, Shoots Himself At Bloomington

Charles Forebach Listed as Suicide by Garrett
County Officers

OAKLAND, Feb. 28.—Charles P. Forebach, 33, unemployed and unmarried resident of Bloomington, fatally shot himself at his home there last night about 7 o'clock, according to State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley.

Forebach had been listening to the radio with relatives at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Lizzie Miller, where he resided, but got up and went out into the hallway, where he fired a 22 calibre revolver into his brain, Fraley said. He had been in ill health, relatives said.

Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county medical examiner, gave a verdict of death by a self-inflicted wound, following an investigation. Assisting in the investigation besides Baumgartner and Fraley were Sheriff J. William Owens and Corporal Thomas Currie of the State Police.

Forebach was a son of Daniel Forebach. Surviving besides his father, are a brother, Howard; and three sisters, Mrs. Weston Wildeson, Mrs. Mary Bailey and Mrs. Millard Knight, all of Bloomington.

Two More File

With the deadline for filing having passed at 4 o'clock this afternoon, two more candidates got "under the wire" and filed for city council with Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector today. Another one also filed for city treasurer, giving competition to the incumbent.

Lloyd Liller and William A. Johnson are the two additional candidates for council. Others filing previously were Delbert M. Davis, president of council, and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, whose terms expire, and Prentice DeBerry.

Mrs. Joseph M. Gonder also filed for city treasurer and will compete with Richard L. Davis, who filed for re-election. Citizens also have the privilege of writing in names upon the ballot if they so desire.

Three councilmen and a treasurer are to be chosen Monday, March 10.

Officers Named

At a meeting of the Garrett County Historical society at the high school last night, Charles E. Hove was elected president; Marshall G. Brown, first vice-president; Miss Viola Broadwater, Grantsville, second vice-president; and Miss Crystal Elliott, secretary.

A constitution which was drawn up by a committee was also adopted. The constitution divides the county into old "settlements" and each settlement may organize and hold meetings from time to time in order to further the ends of the society. Adjoining districts in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland may affiliate and work with the nearest settlement.

The settlements will be Sandy Creek, Little Crossings, Savage River, Accident, Sanging Ground, Great Glades, Ryan's Glade, Potomac River. Some of these names as "settlements" are no longer recognized by the younger people of the county.

Second Registration

Registration of World war veterans will be completed this Saturday at Rudy's Department Store, according to Elza E. Bray, commander of Proctor Kidlow Post No. 71, American Legion.

The registration was scheduled for last Saturday, and after forty-one had registered, those in charge were without any more blanks. It was necessary to send to State headquarters for additional material, which is now here.

Senate Committee Cuts $300,000 Off Budget of Labor Commission

Administration Forces Expected To Seek Restoration of Slash

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Indicating that there is some Senate opposition to the administration's labor relations bill, the Senate Finance committee today reported out its draft of the budget bill with a $300,000 cut in the proposed appropriation for the three-man commission.

The committee made other cuts in the appropriation measure to reduce the biennial total to $71,960,944, as compared with the figure of $72,406,944 after the Board of Public Works submitted a supplemental budget of $16,336,000 yesterday.

Chairman Hession (D-Taylor), who opposed the labor relations commissions cut, said administration forces would seek its restoration.

The Senate in its session became embroiled in a political argument which ended when it voted 22-9 to send back to committee a bill to eliminate "straight ticket" voting in elections.

The measure, backed by Senator Jones (D-Boone) but whose author was Senator Sweeney (R-Ohio), would require that candidates be listed for the offices they seek and not under party labels at the top of the ballots.

Senator Peltier (D-Logan) led the move to recommit the measure and met opposition from the six-man Republican minority and three Democrats.

Jones and Jackson (D-Lewis) both asked that the bill stay on the calendar because it would eliminate "disgraceful conditions" prevailing in both parties in the state. After the debate, the Senate passed and sent to the House bills to establish a state home defense guard under direction of the governor, to allow payment of income taxes in quarterly installments, to exempt volunteer fire departments from the state theater tax and to cut the salaries of Marshall county commissioners from $100 to $25 a month.

Besides the big cut from the labor relations fund in the supplemental budget, the Senate Finance committee proposed to reduce from $70,000 to $40,000 the money for a state Court of Claims, from $14,000 to $8,000 an item for a negro 4-H camp and from $6,000 to $5,000 the proposed salaries of adjutant general and labor commissioner. These officers now receive $4,000 a year each.

Bill Would Provide Jobless Benefits During Shutdowns in Wage Disputes

Unemployment Compensation Law Change Is Urged in House

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A change in the law which would allow payment of unemployment compensation during shutdowns for lack of wage agreements was given approval of the House Judiciary committee in reporting a bill which would make several amendments to the existing act.

The bill was one of a score brought to the floors of House and Senate in a day marked by speeded-up committee activity.

Would Liberalize Payments

The Unemployment Compensation bill as sponsored by the administration also would liberalize payments to workers and allow employers reduced payroll taxes if they have good employment records.

The House Judiciary held a hearing on the same bill tonight.

The United Mine Workers are appealing in the Supreme court a ruling that the present law barred jobless benefits for the 1939 Appalachian mine shutdown. The union and operators will go into conference next month on a new contract, and UMWA spokesmen have said there would be "no work" if no agreement is reached.

The administration's two per cent "use tax" bill, to collect from mail order purchasers who now escape the consumers sales tax, was reported out by the Senate Finance committee.

Teachers Pay Raise

The Senate Education committee reported the bill, already approved by the House, to raise teachers' basic pay around $1,200,000 a year. It also voted to change the name of New River State college at Montgomery to the West Virginia Institute of Technology.

The Senate Judiciary recommended passage of the administration's bill to make the state planning board a constitutional body. It has existed in the past under executive decree.

The Mines department would be allowed to employ as many inspectors as it has funds to pay them under a bill approved by the House Mines committee. The department has a $171,000 annual increase in the budget bill, which more than doubles its funds.

The House Judiciary in a lengthy report also brought out a labor-backed anti-injunction bill. It is patterned after the federal Norris-LaGuardia act to limit powers of courts in granting injunctions in labor disputes and requiring open hearings in all cases.

To Lengthen Session

It approved submission of a constitutional amendment which would make biennial legislative sessions ninety days long, instead of sixty, and raise salaries of legislators from $500 to $1,000 a year each. It also would provide for $10 a day pay while attending special sessions.

These three administration measures also came out.

To amend the adoption law by giving jurisdiction to juvenile courts, requiring consent of children over twelve to adoption and permitting the adoption of persons over twenty-one.

To allow blood tests in paternity cases.

To give a five-point credit to war veterans taking civil service examinations.

Much Tableware Reported Stolen From Old School

INDIAN WOMAN, 114

Mrs. Silvie Thomas

Mrs. Silvie Thomas, a full-blooded Indian living near Idabel, Okla., claims to be the oldest Indian woman alive. Her age is given at 114. She never misses a Sunday attendance at church.

The theft was discovered by Charles Brunner, who noticed a second story window of the building open when he passed en route to the new school to fire the furnace. He gave the alarm, and members of the association, who were given the use of the building by the county school board, made an investigation and found that six dozen spoons and three dozen tablespoons, together with various glass dishes, had been taken. The ladies of the association will make a complete check-up of the equipment this evening to ascertain the total loss, which they fear will be great.

An officer of the association stated today that the night prowlers entered the building by way of the fire escape leading to an upstairs window, and after ransacking the place escaped through a cellar door. Several locks on the inside of the building were broken, but no other damage was noticeable.

The tableware taken was used by the association at its annual suppers for the benefit of the Eckhart street lights and for other social events throughout the year.

Grantsville Briefs

A five-inch snowfall last night and early this morning raised the hopes of ski fans and other winter sports enthusiasts in this section for another week-end of excellent weather for this sport. A light snow continued to fall intermittently today. Fortunately, it lay where it fell, as there were no high winds to drift it, and roads remained open. Highways were slippery however, and many motorists who tried driving without chains found themselves either sliding into a ditch or unable to get up the steeper grades.

A program built around the lives of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln was featured at the meeting of the Jennings Parent-Teacher Association at the Jennings school last night. The Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, Grantsville, also participated in the meeting. During a short business session, the matter of supplying food for school children was discussed and the group decided to try to work out some plan for securing the food for this purpose as well as a means of serving it. It was thought the latter problem might be solved through the NYA.

The Jennings Epworth League has elected the following officers: Wanda Yommer, president; Irene Stahl, vice-president; Jane Wiley, secretary; Eldred Stahl, treasurer; Velma Stahl, chairman of the work-ship committee; Emogene Durst, chairman of the World Friendship committee; Ruth Butler, chairman of the Community Service committee; and Elmer Billmeyer, chairman of the recreation committee. The Jennings society was only recently organized, and the officers will probably be installed at the next meeting.

The Day of Compassion which is being observed by all Methodist churches Sunday, will be celebrated at the Grantsville church at services to be held at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. The Rev. Virgil R. Gillum will conduct the service. On this day, 8,000,000 Methodists are expected to contribute $1,000,000 for overseas relief and camp service. One-half of the sum will be used to aid the suffering millions in war-stricken China and Europe. One-fourth will help maintain the home and foreign missions of British Methodism and one-fourth will be used to provide social life, recreation and spiritual ministry to the men in the army training camps of the United States. The Rev. Mr. Gillum will hold similar services at the other churches in the Grantsville charge Sunday as follows: State Line, 9:30 a. m.; Mt. Zion, 11 a. m.; Johnson Emmanuel, 2:30 p. m.; and Jennings, 6:45 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. August Hanft and family, who formerly operated the Stone House farm, have moved to a farm near Baltimore, where they will make their home.

The Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor, has announced that services at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning will be devoted to foreign missions. The Catechetical class will meet at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, followed by Christian Endeavor at 7:30.

Autry 'Discovered' By Will Rogers

When the projected equestrian statue of Will Rogers is erected on Hollywood Boulevard, no film luminary will be more thrilled than Gene Autry, Republic's singing cowboy whose picture, "Rancho Grande," is now at the Garden theater with a large cast including June Storey, Mary Lee, Dick Hogan, Ferris Taylor and Ann Baldwin.

It was Rogers who discovered Gene. Gene at that time was working as telegrapher in a small town railroad in Oklahoma. A shambling, kindly man dropped in late one night to send a message and heard Gene twanging on his guitar and singing a plaintive ballad.

"You're wasting your time around here, Son," said the stranger. "Come to Hollywood and look me up sometime."

The name on the card the stranger handed Gene was "Will Rogers."

Showing the real drama behind the thrills of football and the roaring crowds, "Yesterday's Heroes," the second feature, tells the story of a college hero and his girl—who showed him that there's more to life than headlines and cheers. Jean Rogers is the girl and Robert Sterling portrays the football star.

James Stewart Starred In Maryland Film

James Stewart, co-star with Cary Grant and Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," now playing at the Maryland theater, was born in Indiana, Pa., May 20.

He became interested in dramatics while attending Princeton university, where he studied to be an architect. After graduation, Stewart went to Falmouth on Cape Cod for a season of summer stock and won a small part in a New York stage hit, "Goodbye Again." In "Yellow Jack," "Page Miss Glory," and "Divided By Three," he proved himself one of the most promising young stage actors in New York and was signed by M-G-M. His first picture was "Rose-Marie," in which he played Jeanette MacDonald's brother. He soon reached stardom.

'Mad Doctor', 'Monster' On Strand Program

The new mystery thriller, "The Mad Doctor," starring Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew and John Howard is now playing at the Strand theater.

The second thrill attraction on today's program is "The Monster and the Girl," starring Robert Paige, Paul Lukas and Joseph Calleia.

'Buck Privates' Stars Andrew Sisters

"Buck Privates," currently screening at the Liberty theater, stars Abbott and Costello and the Andrews Sisters.

"Buck Privates" was filmed from an original screenplay by Arthur T. Horman. Alex Gottlieb was the associate producer.

Myrna Loy, Douglas Starred at Embassy

"Third finger, left hand," comical romance of a marriage mix-up, brings Myrna Loy teamed with Melvyn Douglas for the first time, to the Embassy theater tomorrow in a rapid-fire series of trials and tribulations. It all starts when the sophisticated Myrna invents a mythical husband for business reasons. Douglas, itinerant landscape painter, learns of it, poses as the husband to the dismay of the helpless Myrna, and keeps her other suitors away. She gets even by plunging him into every comical scrape she can think of—but in the end they discover they've been in love all the time. The cast also includes Raymond Walburn, Lee Bowman, Bonita Granville, Felix Bressart, Donald Meek and Ann Morris.

State Restaurants Of Peru Praised By Noted Doctor

Three-Course Meal Served for Four Cents in Sanitary Buildings

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I have been traveling for some weeks in South America, taking the opportunity to study medical problems, and if there are several articles on the South American scene in the next few weeks, I hope my readers will find them interesting.

One of the most remarkable social developments I found in Peru. Here the ministry of public health has instituted public restaurants, operated by the state, where anyone can get a three-course meal for four cents.

When I paid a visit to one of these establishments, it was just the time for school children to be having their lunch. There were about fifteen hundred of them, coming in relays, the overflow stretching in queues clear into the street. School children can get breakfast and lunch free.

The enormous advantage, of course, is that the meals are planned by the department of public health, and are hence balanced meals, with vitamins and minerals.

The same advantage applies to the meals given the adults. For four cents they got, the day I was there, a good, nourishing soup, veal with rice and gravy, and bread, and a dessert pudding. Of course, coffee, for South America is the land of coffee.

The building was a light, airy one-story structure, with floors and walls of tile so that they could be easily cleaned, table tops the same, and kitchens scrupulously clean. The men eat in one room; the women in another.

Milk for the Babies

Off the women's room is a nursery, with cribs for over a hundred babies. Clean rubber covers were being laid on the mattresses. The babies are given a bottle of clean, scientifically prepared milk for one cent, and a nurse tends to them while the mothers are in the nearby dining room.

There are eight such establishments in the city of Lima.

The official who accompanied me to the restaurant said as we drove away, "There is no Communism in Peru."

Certainly it seemed that our neighbor has carried out a very advanced policy.

Think of the contrast between this way of feeding the economically underprivileged and the haphazard way they are fed in many of our large American cities.

I saw a number of other indications of social progress in medical lines, in Peru as well as other South American republics. Everywhere there are large free hospitals—separate ones for men, for women and for children. Some of these were erected with the profits on the public lotteries. Others are part of social security, which is far more advanced than ours. Every employed person pays a percentage of wages as insurance, the employer also adding an allotted percentage. This is insurance against sickness, accident, unemployment and death.

The sickness insurance seems to act very well. I can assure the American Medical Association that the fears it has been fostering about such a procedure in the United States seem very old-fashioned when one sees the scheme in operation.

Lenten Reducing Diet

As suggested by the chef of the Hotel Huntington, Pasadena, California.

First Day

No seasoning on anything.

Either coffee or tea (no sugar or cream) with every meal.

Breakfast: Grapefruit and coffee. Lunch: Chicken sandwich on rye toast; 1 raw tomato.

Dinner: Stalk of celery; good sliced helping of steak; sliced tomato; lettuce and endive salad (or cucumber); ½ grapefruit.

Questions and Answers

L. A. G.: "Is it true that a child goes through a kind of focusing of the eyes between the ages of from two or four years? Is there anything that can be done for a child at two and a half years whose eyes have started to cross for the past six weeks? They only cross at times, when looking straight at you or some object."

Answer—Yes, bifocal vision, that is, the ability to fuse an object with two visual images, is developed at about the age you mention. As to your second question, you certainly should take the child, as fast as you can, to an oculist and not depend on any newspaper writer's opinion on the subject. If cross-eyes are developing, they should be treated early.

IN 'SO ENDS OUR NIGHT'

Anna Sten and Fredric March contribute tense drama to the story of the new David L. Loew-Albert Lewin picture, "So Ends Our Night," which starts a run at the Maryland theater Wednesday.

TENSE MOMENTS TICK OFF

John Howard, Ellen Drew, Barbara Jo Allen and Basil Rathbone are grouped around a metronome as tense seconds tick off in a scene from Paramount's "The Mad Doctor," new murder drama, which with "The Monster and the Girl" comprises a three-hour "horror" program at the Strand theater.

LaSalle Stays in Title Race with 34-25 Win

Explorers Win Over Fort Hill In Final Half

Blue, Gold Passers Break Loose after Low-Scoring First Half

Malloy and Small Pace Conway Five to First City Victory

Scoring more than three times as many points in the last half as they did in the first two quarters, Coach Pat Conway's LaSalle Explorers rode to a 34-25 victory over Fort Hill last night on the SS. Peter & Paul court to stay in the running for the city title.

STANDING OF TEAMS
Team	W-L
LaSalle	1-2
Fort Hill	2-1
St. Peter & Paul	2-1

LaSalle's triumph temporarily gives Bill Bowers' Allegany passers the lead with two wins and one defeat, but a victory for the Blue and Gold over the West Siders next Friday night in the final game of the season would deadlock the three teams and a playoff would be required to decide the winner. However, if the Campers hurdle the Explorers, they will have won the crown for the second straight season.

Last night's engagement, played before a crowd of approximately 800 started out slowly, the two teams making but thirteen points between them in the initial half, but turned into a slam-bang affair in the last two periods.

LaSalle broke on top with Johnny Small's tip-in basket after 3:30 of the first quarter and were ahead all the way. The scores at the quarter posts were 4-1, 8-5, and 19-11.

Wild passing and sloppy shooting by both teams marked the first half while timely shooting and some fine defensive work by the Explorers featured the second. The North Enders more than doubled Fort Hill in goals from the field, scoring fifteen to the Hilltoppers' seven, but missed an opportunity to win by a bigger margin by poor marksmanship at the foul stripe.

The Conway guide made but four of thirteen attempts from the fifteen-foot mark while the Sentinels, on the other hand, used the same black stripe to stay in the game, the Scarlet and White pocketing eleven of its twenty chances.

Malloy Leading Scorer The Explorers undoubtedly played their best in all departments in the last half. They took a five point lead midway in the third quarter when Vic Malloy intercepted Junior Rice's bounce pass and dribbled three-quarters way down the floor to tally, and continued to build up their lead as time wore on. Several times during the final quarter the Conway-men were on top by eleven points.

Malloy, incidentally, was the leading performer of the evening with thirteen points. Ousted from a starting slot in the LaSalle lineup several weeks ago after setting a fast pace in early-season tilts, Malloy played a brilliant game in every way.

His five baskets, four of which were scored in the last half, put that certain something in the LaSalle offensive which has been missing the past few games and at the same time seemed to inspire his teammates. The chunky forward, in addition to his scoring, played a gangue game on rebounds and did some nice dribbling and passing.

Not far behind him in scoring was Small, the North Enders' lanky pivot man. Small also counted five times from the field and was equally effective under the baskets. Dick Boyle with three buckets and six points and "Penny" Shaffer with five tallies, accounted for LaSalle's other counts.

Rice Scores Late Captain Bill Smith failed to score a point but his defensive and floor work were of high order. He held the fast-breaking Rice scoreless for twenty-nine minutes and was a big actor in getting the ball up the floor into scoring position.

Rice who ran wild in Fort Hill's defeat of Allegany on Tuesday night, of his first basket on a long pass with a little more than three minutes to go and then punched the hoop two more times in the last two minutes to share scoring honors with his team with John Blades.

Blades, who tallied two baskets and two fouls was the only Sentinel in addition to Rice to score more than one field goal. Paul Whitford was the only other of Bobby Cavanaugh's starting regulars to make a field, the seventh and final being credited to George Evans on a sensational left-handed toss from his extreme left corner.

Poor First Half Each team missed numerous scoring opportunities in the first few minutes of the game but it wasn't until 3:30 of the period that Small patted in the first score from scrimmage. A minute later Small faked a fadeout of position and dribbled around him to score the second two-point, giving LaSalle a 4-0 lead. With 4:30 gone in the quarter, Jack Cook looped in a singleton for Fort Hill's only point of the stanza and the period ended with the Explorers leading 4-1.

Job of Selecting Winner Of Derby Becomes Easier

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—Weekly report of the Derby Horse Club.

Dispose—Booming. Porter's Cap—Holds steady at high level. Watch developments in the near future. Curious Coin—Good gains. The Rhyme—Up a point. Red Vulcan—Sharp decline. Whirlaway—Solid short. New World—Doubtful investment.

The job of picking the winner of the Kentucky Derby, to which our club is dedicated, became a little easier this past week—but just a little. Half a hundred of the best new three-year-old horses have yet to run in 1941. The winner of the derby—in fact, the whole field of the derby—may come from that number.

Still and all, we do know something now. The two big races of the winter season, for three-year-olds, have been run, and we know the names of the two winner champions: Dispose and Porter's Cap.

Porter's Cap, from the stable of Mr. Charles "Lucky" Howard, is the pride of California. Dispose, son of Discovery, running in the colors of the far-flung King Ranch, is the toast of the Florida season.

The Two Favorites Barring accidents, Dispose and Porter's Cap will open as favorites in the winter bookmakers' early line, which will hit the streets in a week or so, when the entries for the derby are announced.

Porter's Cap is a big horse, and a proven runner on fast tracks and muddy. Dispose is a speed demon, built a little on the snug side. There for the time being, we have our leaders, with our boots, which did not run this winter, close behind.

In the remote event that Porter's Cap goes in the Santa Anita Handicap this week-end, wrestling with older horses for the hundred grand, there may be a shift in the odds. But Mr. Chas. "Lucky" Howard has another horse entered in that race, and the chances are he will elect to win, if possible, with Mieland, rather than Porter's Cap.

The Cap's victory in the Santa Anita Derby is old stuff by now. Dispose's triumph in the Flamingo Stakes, down at Hialeah, poured new light on the three-year-old situation.

In the first place, the great Whirlaway, champion of his age last year and the original favorite for the Kentucky Derby, failed to start. His trainer, the sagacious Mr. Benjamin Jones, declared that Whirlaway had "popped a splint." This, if true, can be taken to mean that the Whirl is not sound, and will need all the time between now and May to recover his health and form. We can file the whirler away for future reference.

Dispose Survived the Test

Dispose won the Flamingo (one mile and a furlong) with a show of class and courage. He broke like lightning and led all the way. The legendary of the turf has it that a horse is never tested till another horse looks him in the eye in the stretch. Dispose survived that test. At the head of the stretch, as they pounded for home, the fast and powerful Curious Coin pulled even with Dispose and they ran the rest of the way in a dogfight—with Dispose never quite losing the lead.

Keep an eye on The Rhyme, runner third. He was going the fastest of all at the finish, and the Kentucky Derby, remember, is a furlong longer than the Flamingo. Red Vulcan, another promising colt, turned out to be a sprinter. He curled up after three-quarters of a mile.

Dispose won a rousing hand from his owner and his stable, and a definite Derby commitment. "He's a real horse," said Alfred Robertson, his rider. "I think he'll go on to win at longer distances, all right."

"No use denying it," said Max Hirsch, his trainer, who saddled Bold Venture in the 1936 Kentucky Derby, "we're pointing him for the Derby."

From our scout on the barn circuit, who is watching the horses who do not run in the winter, we learn that New World, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's colt, one of the speediest last year, is not a good Derby risk. The boys in his barn do not seem to think that New World will be equal to the Derby distance as early as May 4.

The Derby Horse Club, membership unlimited, will continue to scratch for information and to pass it along to you. Meanwhile, remember the dark horse special: Harvard Square.

Four Yanks Sign

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—The New York Yankees made a big haul on their holidays today, signing pitchers Red Ruffing and John Murphy and outfielders George Selkirk and Tom Henrich.

This sport left only outfielder Joe DIMaggio and infielder Joe Gordon out of the fold and Gordon, already present at camp, was expected to come to terms over the week-end.

Nothing has been heard from DIMaggio, who presumably still is in California. The day was cold, causing curtailment of the Yanks' workout.

Sam Snead Wins St. Petersburg Open Tourney

Conquers Chill and Gusty Winds by Trouncing Par by Five Strokes

By LARRY ROLLINS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Slugging Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., conquered chill and gusty winds from the Gulf of Mexico today to win the $5,000 St. Petersburg Open golf tournament with two strokes to spare.

While other scores soared, Snead kept sending his shots screaming into the breeze for rounds of 68 and 72 to clip five strokes off par with a 72 hole total of 279.

Long Game Is Good

Snead's long game was so much better than that of the others in the blustery weather that he could afford to miss a half dozen birdie putts.

The reward was the $1,200 top prize. Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who is becoming a chronic runner-up, tied at 281 with Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., and Harold McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., winner of the Thomasville open last week. Each collected $525.

Herman Kelsor of Akron, Ohio, holed a 100-yard niblick approach for an eagle on the home hole to earn sixth money of $300 with 282. Four others tied at 284 to draw down $215 each, among them Jimmie Demaret of Houston, last year's St. Petersburg winner. The others were Ralph Guldahl of Chicago, former National Open Champion; Sam Byrd of Ardmore, Pa., one-time Yankee ballplayer; and Al Brosch of Farmingdale, N. Y.

Guldahl Blows Up

Guldahl was near the front until he distinguished himself with a big nine on the par five eighteenth hole this morning. His tee shot landed beside a pipe under a bridge, so he dropped out and hit the ball back to the same place. He tried it again, sliced into a creek, and finally wound up by three-putting.

It was PGA Champion Byron Nelson of Toledo, however, who won the day's spectacular honors. Nelson shot himself into the running with a magnificent morning 65 and then tacked on an inglorious 77 to finish barely in the money.

Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., the first day leader, blew skyhigh today and wound up out of the money at 287.

Allegany Drops 26-23 Clash to Ferndale High

Jackets Stave off Late Camper Rally To Sweep Season's Series

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 28—Ferndale High cagers ran up the points on Allegany High of Cumberland, Md., in the first three periods here tonight but had to stave off a last-quarter rally by the Marylanders before winning 26-23. The victory completed a sweep of the two-game series for Ferndale, the Jackets having topped Allegany by a 35-26 count earlier in the season.

Allegany got off to an early lead when Kenny Sherman looped in three straight fouls but the Jackets came back to tally five points and lead by a 5-3 count at the quarter. The locals increased their margin to five points at the halfway mark, the score showing 15-10 and went into the final quarter leading by a 21-11 score.

The visitors, off in their shooting and passing the first three periods, started to click as the fourth period got underway and reeled off twelve points while holding the opposition to five, their late rally falling just short of tying the score.

Howie Wilson, who played little more than half the game in a substitute role, was Allegany's leading performer with seven points on three field goals and a foul while Bill "Jesse" James and Sherman each scored five tallies to tie for second.

Barron and Clawson scored fifteen of the winners' points, the former making eight and the latter accounting for seven. The lineups:

Ridgeley Wins Potomac Conference Title

Hahnmen Finish Regular Season with Fifteen Consecutive Victories

Ridgeley high school won its first Potomac Valley Conference championship in history last night by swamping Thomas 48 to 25 for its tenth consecutive conference victory and its fifteenth straight win of the season.

The Hahnmen, needing last night's game to assure them undisputed possession of first place, played a steady game and the outcome never was in doubt after the first few minutes in the opening quarter.

700 Fans See Game
Playing before about 700 fans, one of the largest crowds of this season, Ridgeley's accurate shooting, fast passing and strong defensive game kept Thomas in trouble throughout the contest.

The new Conference champions took a 11 to 6 lead in the first quarter and easily kept it out in front of the Thomas boys. At the half Ridgeley was in front 24 to 11 and led 38 to 17 at the end of the third quarter.

Abe with eight field goals and one foul carried off individual scoring honors with 17 points, while Washbaugh with 12 points and Lookabaugh with 11 points followed in the order named. Hartman scored four points, Payne two, with Adams and Robertson each scoring a foul.

While Abe Washbaugh and Lookabaugh did most of the scoring, it was a team victory as the starting five played together like clockwork and about the only flaw in the team's work was that the boys missed quite a few followup shots. On the defense Ridgeley kept the Thomas attack bottled up throughout the game.

Coch Hahn used his second team about half of the third quarter and the last five minutes of the fourth period, but Thomas was unable to do much even with the Ridgeley regulars on the bench.

Team Wins 21 Games
Ridgeley closed the season with a record of twenty-one victories against four defeats, all the losses coming in the first six games of the season. The only teams to defeat Ridgeley were, Allegheny twice, LaSalle and Beal. The last defeat came at the hands of Allegheny January 11.

In taking its first Potomac Valley Conference championship, Ridgeley turned back Keyser twice, Thomas twice, Romney twice, Piedmont twice and Moorefield twice. The only narrow escape the team had was in winning its seventh conference victory, barely managing to eke out a 16 to 13 victory at Romney.

Ridgeley is favored to take the Class B tournament which will be played in Keyser next week-end but will have keen competition from Piedmont and Keyser.

The 1941 Ridgeley team established two records, winning the conference title for the first time and defeating Piedmont on the Ridgeley floor for the first time in the history of athletic relations between the two schools.

RAMBLING WITH ROOKIES

EARL COOK
Detroit Tigers

Discounting the sale of his contract to the Detroit Tigers last fall, the best break Earl Cook ever received in pro baseball came during the 1939 season when the Cincinnati Reds turned him over to the Buffalo Bisons in an outright sale, after he had put in a little over three years on the Rhineland roster.

It wasn't until the husky farmer from Lemoville, Ont., had been assigned a locker in the Bison clubhouse that he started to acquire a pair of pitching requisites that had evaded him during the first seven years of his diamond wanderings. At Buffalo, under the canny guidance of Steve O'Neill, Cook developed confidence and control. Then, he stepped out against International League foe and compiled his best pitching record.

Won 15 Games in 1940

The twenty-eight-year-old right-hander, who moves up to the Tigers this spring, has had only three winning years in the game in 1935, 1936 and 1937, when he won eleven and lost nine with Toronto and was promptly taken up by Cincinnati. In 1937, with Syracuse, he scored nine victories against eight setbacks. During the past campaign, he won fifteen games, dropping ten with Buffalo.

Strong and broad-shouldered, Cook was a bear for punishment, especially in the latter part of the International schedule, when he twice essayed the Iron-Man stunt. He ran up an eight-game winning streak, helped by a successful Iron Man job. Earl hit the peak of his effectiveness August 15 at Jersey City, when he humbled Jersey City's Giants twice by the same score, 2 to 0. He toiled sixteen straight innings, yielding a total of eleven hits, didn't issue a pass and had four strike-outs. Four days later, he shut out the Syracuse Chiefs, 7 to 0, on two hits.

Up to the past season, Cookie was one of those luckless hurlers who can't seem to get much hitting support, but always looks better than his record. For most of the 1934 season, with Beckley in the Middle Atlantic League, he topped the hurriers in earned-run averages, but lost nine games, while winning only eight. That was the only season, he spent in a league of lower classification than Class AA.

Learns from O'Neill
One of the few Canadian-born and raised players in baseball, Cook was rejected three times by the Cincinnati Reds without having what he considered a real chance to prove his ability. He had just about relinquished any hopes of progressing past the higher minors when O'Neill learned his magic wand.

"I never knew a fellow could learn so much about his job after he'd been at it for eight years," Cook confided, "but Steve O'Neill and Clyde McCullough, between them, taught me plenty this year." Cook rates McCullough as easily the best catcher in the International wheel in 1940. "Mac, who goes to the Chicago Cubs, just seems to ooze confidence behind the platter and a pitcher can't help but feel the same way."

Strangely enough, it was Johnny Kroner, an infielder, who aided Cookie and to his pitching repertoire last season. The former Boston Red Sox and Cleveland player was "just fooling around" one day, when he suddenly called Cook aside and showed him how to throw a "slider."

With Toronto Two Years
It was with the Stouffville, Ont., team that Earl earned his spurs when he was fifteen. He was sought by Toronto amateur teams and after two good seasons as an amateur, the Toronto Maple Leafs signed Earl to a contract and took him south to spring camp in 1932.

Cook remained with the Leafs during the entire 1932 and 1933 campaigns. Then he was optioned to Beckley in 1934. When he came back to Toronto and won eleven games while losing nine with a second division club in 1935, it seemed that he had really arrived. "Toronto lost all claims to Cook that fall. Under a working agreement, the Cincinnati Reds selected him for 1936 delivery."

Farmed to Syracuse
For the better part of four years, Cook was a Cincinnati chattel, but the only time he wore a Rhineland uniform was in spring training. Three times he was rejected by the Reds without having what Earl figured was a "decent chance" to show what he could do.

Farmed out to Syracuse in 1937 and 1938, he won a total of nineteen games and lost twenty over the two-year period. He went back to the Reds for spring training in 1939 and finally was given a chance. He pitched three hitless and runless innings against Detroit and followed up with a three-inning shutout job over the St. Louis Cards. Then they optioned Earl to Columbus, where he lost three straight.

Discarded by a Major League club and unable to do anything right with Columbus, Cook was on the verge of despair, when he was shunted to Buffalo in an outright deal. He finished the season of 1939 with the Bisons, winning eight games against seven losses.

ACTION IN RIDGELEY-THOMAS GAME

Here is an action shot made by the NEWS photographer in the Ridgeley-Thomas basketball game played last night at Ridgeley when the Mineral county lads won their first Potomac Valley Conference championship in history by defeating Thomas 48 to 25. A crowd of 700 fans went wild with joy as the Hahn coached team won its tenth straight conference victory and its fifteenth consecutive win of the season. The photographer snapped this picture just as Lookabaugh No. 20 made a basket in the first quarter. The ball can be seen dropping through the netting. Players in the picture from left to right are No. 26, Minicastro, of Thomas; directly in front of him is Abe of Ridgeley with Loeh of

Episcopals Hold Lead in Oakland Basketball Loop

Catholics Overcome Big Lead To Turn Back the Methodists

OAKLAND, Feb. 28.—While the Episcopals were defeating the Lutherans with ease and maintaining their lead in the church basketball league here, the Catholics nosed out the Methodists by a one-point margin to take second place in games played last night.

Although the Methodist led 12 to 8 at the half the Catholic team slowly overcame the lead. Just a few minutes before the whistle Stevenson made a foul to put the Methodists one point ahead but Shaffer came through for the Catholics with a field goal that gave them the game. Jones and Bayless with 10 and 8 points paced the Methodists while Nebera with four field goals was high for the Catholics.

The Lutherans played without their captain, Howard White and the Episcopals piled up a lead of 20 to 4 at the half and took it easy the rest of the way. A Wolfe, Steve and Chaney scored 10, 9 and 8 points for the Episcopals.

Next Thursday the Lutherans and Methodists meet while the Catholics and Episcopals play. The Catholics could tie for first by defeating the Episcopals.

In a preliminary game last night the Catholic girls won over the Episcopal girls 19 to 18. Lucas scored 14 points for the Catholics and DeWitt 13 points for the Episcopals.

NYA Will Erect $10,000 Building in North End

Shop Will Be Trade Center For 200 Local Youths in National Defense Setup

Building Will Be Located on Holland Street; Equipment To Cost Approximately $42,000

Preliminary work on construction of a $10,000 building to house a National Youth Administration shop program in Cumberland will begin Monday, E. Price Steiding, of Lonaconing, assistant area director, announced last night.

Machine shop, sheet metal and welding equipment for the trade center will cost between $40,000 and $42,000, Steiding said.

The shop will be located on county home property near the Holland street playground. The one-story building will be of all-steel construction, and its dimensions will be forty by 120 feet.

The building material and the machinery are on their way, Steiding said, and the project should be in operation within six weeks or two months.

The building will be erected by NYA youths under the supervision of William C. Schramm, Barton, who directed construction of the NYA community house at Lonaconing. Approximately 100 youths will be employed in grading the land, other preliminary work and erection of the structure.

When completed, the project will be equipped to accommodate some 200 of the 400 male youths on Cumberland NYA rolls, according to Steiding. Youths now on the rolls will be given priority in assignment to the shop, he said.

The project will tie in with the national defense program, the NYA official pointed out, in providing training for youths in trades vital to industry.

Announcement of final approval of the project culminated a two-year campaign by Steiding and other officials to secure such facilities for Cumberland.

Steiding expressed appreciation to the board of county commissioners for its co-operation, particularly in providing rent-free land for the project. He said city officials had also co-operated in bringing the project here.

As is customary, articles manufactured at the new shop will be for use by various public agencies.

District Governor of Rotary Supervises Campaign for Funds

"Service above self" is the Rotary slogan.

"Do a good turn daily" is the Boy Scout slogan.

Dr. Thomas Bess, governor of the One Hundred and Eightieth District of Rotary this year is also a good scout.

This week he is giving general supervision to the scout drive for funds in the area outside of Cumberland, and is also personally in charge of the soliciting in the New Creek district.

Good community workers like "Dr. Tom" as he is affectionately known to his many friends, attract the admiration and cooperation of like-minded folks.

The following organizations of Keyser have already pledged their support in the present drive for scouting funds:

Rotary club, American Legion and auxiliary, Nurses association, Women's club, Business Men, Professional Woman's club, Masonic bodies, all churches, Lions club, Yeoman, Firemen and auxiliary, Potomac State faculty, B & O, employees, Eastern Star, W.P.A. executives, D.P.A. executives, Daughters of the American Revolution, Loyal Order of Moose, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

Methodists To Make Offerings Tomorrow for Emergency Fund

Giving practical expression to the sacrificial spirit of the opening Lenten season, Methodist churches of Cumberland and nearby towns will make special offerings tomorrow toward a million dollar emergency fund for camp service and relief.

The Rev. Dr. Vernon N. Ridgely, pastor of Centre street Methodist church, announces that the day has been named "Methodism's Day of Compassion."

One fourth of the money to be raised in the nation's Methodist churches tomorrow has been earmarked for aid to British Methodism where more than 600 Methodist churches have been seriously damaged or demolished by aerial bombardment. Many congregations have been almost entirely evacuated and hundreds of churches have been turned into shelters, first aid stations and feeding centers.

Tomorrow's fund also will support a morale-building program in behalf of trainees in army camps and navy yards. Regular chaplains will be aided and nearby local churches will be strengthened with personnel and equipment to meet their enlarged responsibilities.

Added interest has been given the day by the discovery that March 2 is the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the death in London of the founder of Methodism, the Rev. John Wesley.

WPA Worker Is Held on Charge Of Counterfeiting

Albert Dawson Bound Over to Federal Grand Jury by Avirett

Albert Dawson, 33-year-old Bloomington WPA worker was ordered held for action of a federal jury on counterfeiting charges yesterday after a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett. He was committed to the county jail in default of $1,000 bond.

Similar charges against Robert Kerns, of near Bloomington, were dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

Makes Spirited Defense

Dawson pleaded not guilty and put up a spirited defense at the lengthy hearing, but testimony of five prosecution witnesses and discrepancies between his admitted statements and officers Thursday and his testimony yesterday resulted in his being held.

The man, employed on the Savage River dam project, is accused of manufacturing and passing a quantity of spurious fifty-cent coins.

Deputy United States Marshal told of finding ten of the coins in Dawson's house, together with crude equipment allegedly used in their manufacture. His testimony was partially corroborated by Thomas Cox, the defendant's nephew, who lived in the Dawson home.

State Police Corporal John H. Doud and Garrett County Sheriff William Owens testified that when they went to the dam Thursday to arrest Dawson at Loughrie's request, he sought to flee from them. But his attempt to escape over the mountain was futile.

Says He Found Coins

When first questioned, the officers said, Dawson denied any knowledge of the counterfeit coins or their manufacture. Later, however, he said he had "found" them in house and that they had been made by Kerns, according to the officers.

At the hearing Dawson said he had lied to the officers in an effort "to trap the man responsible" for making the coins. He repudiated his statement of Thursday, and the charges against Kerns were consequently dismissed, since there was no evidence other than Dawson's accusation.

Another prosecution witness was Marvin Teter, a bartender at Potomac Inn on West Virginia Route 27, who testified that he saw Dawson during tonight's snowstorm.

The injured delegates were Charles M. See, of Cumberland, and S. Rinehart, of Hancock, Washington county, Wellington Reinhart, 30, of Cumberland, See's secretary and operator of the car, also was hurt.

Another delegate, Henry Holzapfel, of Hagerstown, was riding in the car but was not injured.

Brought to West Baltimore hospital by a passing motorist, Cohill was treated for a bruised head, shoulder injuries and leg scratches. See received treatment for cuts on the inside of his mouth and a bruised eye.

Reinhart, after being given first aid by an Ellicott City physician, was brought to the University hospital and treated for a bruised arm and possible leg fracture.

See is the second member of the House of Delegates from Allegany county to suffer injury in an automobile accident since the present session of the General Assembly got under way. Jonathan Sleeman was injured February 15 when he walked into a moving automobile at the corner of Liberty and Baltimore streets, and was taken to Memorial hospital where he remained a week before being discharged last Sunday.

Wellsburg Man Enlists in Army

Ronald E. Hebb, of Wellsburg, Pa., enlisted in the United States Army yesterday at the local Army recruiting station, according to Sgt. Clarence Blehn, officer in charge.

Hebb has been assigned to the Quartermaster Corps, Thirteenth Hundred and Twentieth Service Unit, Fort Belvoir, Va., as a chauffeur.

Active pallbearers will be State Senator E. Stuart Bushong, Judge Joseph D. Mish, Charles S. Lane, III, Philip Winebrenner, Frank W. Mish, Jr., Ross Hostetter, Louis Mabley of Detroit and A. S. Mason of Norfolk.

Honorary pallbearers will include Byron's colleagues of the House Military Affairs committee, Speaker Sam Rayburn; John W. McCormack, Democratic floorleader; Senators Millard E. Tydings and George L. Radcliffe of Maryland, and members of the Maryland delegation.

Also among the honorary pallbearers will be Governor O'Connor; Louis Compton, assistant secretary of the navy; Representatives Hutton Summers, James Barnes and Thomas Henning; State Senators Dudley G. Roe and Arthur Brice; E. Brooke Lee; Attorney General William C. Walsh; William Preston Lane; Mayor Richard H. Sweeney of Hagerstown; Mayor R. G. Hawkins and city councilmen of Williamsport, and officers and directors of business institutions with which Byron was associated.

In addition to his mother, Byron is survived by his widow and five sons.

City Employees Ask Raise In Wages; Urge Standard Force Throughout Year

Want Boost of 12½ Cents; Some Now Receive Only $16 a Week

A committee of five, representing the Street and Alley, Sewer and Water departments yesterday afternoon requested the mayor and council for an increase in wages and recommended certain improvements in working conditions that would be of advantage to the city as well as to employees.

The committee comprising Roy F. Maphis, chairman, Guy F. Long, Edward W. Johnson, Raymond E. Grain and Robert L. Adams conferred with Mayor Harry Irvine, William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and light, and James Orr, commissioner of police and fire, and asked the council to consider their request for an increase in wages of twelve and one half cents an hour for the coming year.

In a resolution presented to the council, the group said it had no complaint about supervision but would like to recommend, especially for the street and sewer departments, that their budgets be divided over twelve months of the year so that work and wages can be more equally distributed.

Urge Standard Force

The committee said that instead of working as the employees now are and getting only three and four days a week it urged maintenance of a standard force throughout the year instead of employing great numbers of men in the summer, using up the year's appropriation, and laying off men during the winter months.

In winter, the committee pointed out, that employees have their children in school and have coal, extra clothing and other necessities which make it imperative that they work during the winter months. The group further states that the regular men now employed are skilled in many kinds of work and most of them have been employed by the city for a long period making it difficult to fill such positions with inexperienced men.

One member of the committee declared that due to the cost of living rising rapidly wages and salaries of industry are increasing and that it is almost impossible to support a family on three or four days' work a week. He further stated that under the present wage rate of 50 cents an hour some employees are only getting 32 hours work a week and receiving only $16 a pay day. Supporting a wife and children on $16 a week is a hard task, he concluded.

Makes No Promises

Mayor Irvine told the committee that the request for increases in salary will be taken under consideration by the council when the budget for the next fiscal year is prepared but added that he could make no promises to the men at this time.

The mayor gave the committee an insight on the municipal financial setup and declared that if the present police bill goes through at Annapolis the city will be obligated to scrape up $20,000 extra for that department next year. This increase alone may force the city to eliminate its annual appropriation for the Cumberland Free Public Library and curtail operations in the health and several other departments.

Irvine told the committee that he was pleased that the group called for yesterday's conference instead of taking its troubles to Annapolis, and assured the men that their request will receive consideration at the proper time.

Dates Announced For County High School Debate

Six Schools Will Compete in Preliminaries March 28; Finals April 4

Preliminaries in the Annual Spring Debate for Allegany county public high schools will be held Friday, March 28, with the finals scheduled for Friday, April 4, it was announced yesterday by local school officials.

The question for the annual debate in which pupils of Bruce, Barton, Central, Beall, Port Hill and Allegany high schools will compete is:

"Resolved, that the recent trend toward increase in power of the Federal government is inimical to the general welfare of the people of the United States."

The term "general welfare" is interpreted in the same manner as in the preamble of the Constitution of the United States.

Started in 1920

Dating back to 1920, the debate has been an annual feature in the public high schools of the county. For nineteen consecutive years the debates were known as the Ferman G. Pugh Debate, in honor of the late president of the Allegany County Board of Education. When failing health compelled Mr. Pugh to resign from the school board, the debate carried the name of William A. Gunter, president, and in recent years has been known as the "Annual Spring Debate."

A total of twelve gold medals are awarded annually by the Board of Education to the outstanding affirmative and negative speaker of each of the six schools and the school winning both sides of the argument in the finals will receive a banner, similar to the Tasker G. Lowndes Declaration banner, which must be won three years in succession to become one's permanent possession.

In the long history of debates only three schools have won banners permanently, namely, Allegany, Central and Bruce, Barton, Beall and Port Hill each are credited with winning a single debate.

Port Hill Won in 1940

Last year the debate was on the question of "Cooperatives" and the contest ended in a triple tie. In the debate-offs Central, of Lonaconing, defeated Bruce, of Westernport, and Port Hill won its first leg on a banner by winning over Central. In 1939 Allegany won over Bruce in a debate-off.

AAA Program Is To Be Discussed In Allegany

Series of Meetings Will Be Held, Ralph F. McHenry Announces

Farmers of Allegany county will be given the opportunity in the next few weeks to inquire about the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program and to affiliate with the plan if they wish. Meetings will be held in various towns throughout the county at which two farmers who are participating in the AAA program will explain the procedure.

Personnel for Key Positions at New Montgomery Ward Store Announced

With Few Exceptions, All Positions Are Filled by Cumberlanders

John O. Dice, manager of the new Montgomery Ward store, corner of Baltimore and South George streets, yesterday announced that the personnel for the store had been chosen and that their training would begin immediately.

With the exception of a few supervisory jobs, all positions are filled by residents of Cumberland. In commenting on this, Dice stated that Wards have found that employees familiar with the city can give the most effective service to the customers. "We feel too," said Dice, "that Cumberland employees help make Wards a real Cumberland store."

The training given Ward employees is simple, yet fundamental, Dice said. First, they must know Ward merchandise thoroughly. Second, they must be acquainted with all the services Ward's offers to their customers. Third, they must be courteous, friendly and helpful at all times.

Cumberland Airport Bill Is Unanimously Approved By West Virginia House

Measure Permits City To Build Airport in Mineral County; Bill Goes to the Senate

CHAIRMAN—Interested in scouting for twenty-five years, Dr. Thomas Bess, of Keyser, governor of the One Hundred and Eightieth District of Rotary, has been named chairman of the drive for funds for Boy Scouts in Potomac Council in the area outside of Cumberland. The campaign opened February 27 and will continue through March 8.

Upon the motion of Delegate Rogers (R-Mineral), who said the Maryland legislature was waiting for passage of the act, the House pulled a bill from the bottom of its calendar, suspended the rules and gave it unanimous approval.

Randolph Sends Message

A telegram from Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.), announcing presidential approval arrived yesterday at city hall at about the same time the mayor and city council were discussing details of airport construction with Fred W. Springer, of Frederick, WPA district representative.

The telegram was worded as follows:

"President" approval given WPA project construction and development Cumberland municipal airport, Mineral county, W. Va. Amount $2,030,212."

At yesterday's session, estimates of the cost of the first unit of the airport have been revised slightly and the one project changed into three, the council was informed by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer. Construction is expected to be started next month.

First estimates which included the purchase of land, legal and engineering fees, a water line, relocation of a road and the first runway, called for a city expenditure of $161,735 and a WPA cost of $832,559, making the total $994,294.

After reviewing the project WPA officials said road and water work could not be included under special provisions concerning expenditures of defense money. Later it was found that the road relocation could be included and a project was prepared calling for an expenditure of $30,193 by the WPA and $6,000 by the city.

Special Water Project

The water line cannot be included as part of the airport but a project for it calls for the WPA to spend $7,341 and the city $4,417. This means the city will have to spend $4,417 or some like amount over the $200,000 it has pledged for the airport. The six-inch water line, which will be about a mile long, will extend from the present city mains to the airport.

The estimated cost of runway No. 1, not including the road and water work, is $938,527, the city's share being $151,095 and the WPA share $787,432.

Mr. Springer told members of the Council he can see no other major changes in the project and assured the Council the city will not be obliged to spend more than $200,000 plus the water line cost to secure landing field. Administration buildings and hangars were eliminated earlier.

334 Marriage Licenses Issued Here in February

During the month of February the clerk of court issued 334 marriage licenses which is the second-highest number of licenses sold in the month of February during the last twenty-five years, according to the clerk. The largest number was issued in February, 1938, when 346 were issued.

Cumberland is fast regaining its former standing as a Gretna Green, a check at the marriage license bureau revealed yesterday. In January 1940 only eighty-four marriage licenses were sold in contrast to 398 in January of this year. Last February eighty-one couples received their marriage papers which is 253 short of this month's total.

Student Nurses Leave For Training Course

The Misses Rita Blocker, Dorothy Hartman, Nellie Johnson and Helen Hite, student nurses at Allegany hospital, left yesterday morning for Mt. Hope Retreat, Baltimore, where they will take a three-month course in Psychiatric Nursing.

January Payrolls and Employment in Cumberland Show Increases

Employment, payrolls and retail sales for Cumberland in January, 1941, show increases over the same month for 1940, according to the monthly report of the chamber of commerce, released yesterday.

An increase in the number of people registered at the Maryland State Employment Service was attributed to a furlough at the Celanese plant this month.

Decreases were noted in postal receipts, postal savings bonds and postal savings deposits during the month of January, 1941, over December, 1940. The postal receipt decrease can be explained when the Christmas mailing rush is taken into consideration. Bank deposits increased $33,000 in December 1940 over December 1939.

A resume of the report follows:

Employment for January
Jan. 1941	15,937
Jan. 1940	14,574

Payroll for January
Jan. 1941	$2,169,059.91
